SCORES OF LIVES FEARED LOST IN WRECKS AS FREAK STORM LASHES NEW JERSEY COAST

BATTLE FORECAST IN COUNCIL TODAY OVER KEY VEToes

Vigorous Efforts Will Be Made To Override on Ordinance Repealing Store Hour Limitation and Steiner Measure.

TEST OF POLICIES FACED BY MAYOR

Fight To Put Administration on Trial; Police "Racket" Report To Be Offered by Committee.

Two vetoes of Mayor James L. Key are expected to precipitate a bitter fight in council this afternoon, with a prospect that the policies of the administration itself will be on trial. A third major feature of the body's regular session will be receipt of a report of a special investigation committee probing charges of racketeering in connection with the police department.

Key has vetoed an ordinance designed to repeal a measure fixing the opening and closing hours for grocers in Atlanta, and also another ordinance establishing a separate board of trustees to control the Albert Steiner cancer ward of Grady hospital.

Both vetoes will be under the fire of leading council representatives, with a prospect that the policies of the administration itself will be on trial. A third major feature of the body's regular session will be receipt of a report of a special investigation committee probing charges of racketeering in connection with the police department.

Berman, White Lead Fight. Councilmen Joseph E. Berman and John A. White, of the fourth-Key's ward, will lead the fight to abandon any effort by the municipality to "legally" regulate the opening and closing hours of any businesses.

Council passed the repeal ordinance by a vote of 24 to 7 against. Berman has issued a vitriolic statement in which he attacked the mayor for modification of provisions of the ordinance, saying his act itself was illegal and without authority.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of a special council committee established to compose differences between the Steiner and Grady board of trustees, will insist that council direct establishment of a separate committee to control Steiner. The committee is author of the separate board measure.

Council approved the new Steiner board proposal by a vote of 25 to 9 against. Key's Veto Has Backing. Key, however, has written a strong veto message on the Steiner report. He has the backing of the official personnel of the Fulton County Medical Society and of about 250 members of the organization in asking council to sustain the veto.

Passage of the measure over the mayor's veto might precipitate a serious situation at Grady since about 225 doctors who are members of the staff of the medical society might withdraw their services from the hospital as has been threatened by the society.

Proponents of the separate board claim, however, that the change is merely an "intimidation" and not to be considered seriously on the basis that the doctors would not relinquish their posts at Grady.

The battle over the two vetoes will

Woman's Cry Routs Bull After Pitchfork Fails

WARWICK, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—The moral of this story would appear to be that a woman's scream is sharper than the prongs of a pitchfork.

When an enraged bull attacked James Ball today the latter's brother, George, attempted to turn the beast aside by jabbing it with a pitchfork. He was not having much success when his wife appeared on the scene and let go a few piercing shrieks.

The bull, which had ignored the pitchfork thrusts, turned on the woman and then fled to the far end of the pasture. James suffered bruises and lacerations.

STATE DELEGATION TO SEE WALLACE, ASK FUND RELEASE

Full Georgia Group Expected To Call on Secretary and Seek To Compose Differences.

The Georgia delegation in congress will meet with Secretary Wallace in Washington today and seek to compose a difference between the state of Georgia and the federal department of agriculture which has resulted in the government withholding $10,000,000 due the state as its share of the appropriation for highway construction.

Officials of the department of agriculture have questioned the legal status of the highway board of Georgia. Governor Eugene Talmadge contends that the body he set up after ousting members of the former board is qualified in every particular to expend the fund.

Senator Walter F. George, who arranged the conference with the agriculture department, head, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and the members of the house delegation, today will ask Secretary Wallace to release the funds as Governor Talmadge requested.

Having declared that the federal government could keep the money until it decided to treat the state of Georgia with a large delegation of Georgians. Last week the Georgia executive turned down a plan proposed by the agriculture department under which an engineer of the department would have supervised the expenditure of the fund.

"Georgia will not accept the money unless it gets out of the same upon as other states," the governor asserted. "We will get our share of the money eventually and it will be of as much good to the state then as it would be now. We just won't how to those who want us to be treated differently than other states are treated."

Chairman J. J. Mangham and the two members of the highway board approved the governor's decision. Mangham stated that the board would continue its highway work with state funds. "We have enough to keep us going," he said, "and although we would like to have the federal funds now we are going to be able to get along without it."

The Georgia delegation will press for immediate release of the fund. Although the highway board has been in existence since the late 1920s, it has never received a cent from the federal government.

Mob Disinters Body Of Ex-Police Head

HAVANA, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A frenzied mob today disinterred the body of Antonio B. Alineari, former police head, from the grave where it had been buried a short time before.

The body was found in the entrance of a building which had been used by the police. A mob of about 50 men gathered around the body and scattered the demonstrators.

Alineari, who had been in hiding since the late 1920s, was a member of the ABC secret society. He was killed by a mob of about 50 men gathered around the body and scattered the demonstrators.

He expects the big emergency job to be done by then and will sit back and watch it operate under a permanent administrator while he returns to the life of an industrialist and takes some of his own medicine.

STRICT MEASURES INVOKED TO CHECK VIOLENCE IN CUBA

Two More Machadistas End Lives To Escape Capture; De Cespedes Orders Passports.

HAVANA, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The government of Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes today took drastic steps to check the recurrent violence which, as an aftermath of the rebellion which overthrew the Machado regime, has kept the republic in turmoil.

Lieutenant Colonel Erasmo Delgado, chief of staff of the army, announced that nobody would be permitted to leave the country without a military pass. He also announced that charges of misconduct against anyone connected with the previous regime must be presented to the authorities, signed with the names of the accusers.

"The government will give no consideration to confidential accusations," the communique said.

This came on the heels of the deaths of two former supporters of Gerardo Machado, banished president of Cuba. Antonio Alineari, chief of police under the Machado regime, committed suicide when he was trapped last night in a cheap room he had rented under an assumed name here. He wore a pair of cheap trousers, a shirt and tennis shoes.

Sampol Slain. Early this morning, Aito Sampol, a former police sergeant reputed to be one of the most notorious killers in the force, committed suicide when he was trapped in a cafe at the corner of Carlos Terreiro and Infanta streets.

Sampol raced into the cafe, pursued by members of the A B C, formerly a secret political organization which had defied the orders of the new authorities and continued their ruthless campaign for the extermination of members of the porra, or "strong-arm squad" employed by the former administration.

He found all exits barred to his escape and, trapped, shot himself. Sampol first, however, in a blind rage shot and killed Jose Aguirre, a chauffeur, who happened to come in range of his gun. Aguirre had nothing to do with the capture of Sampol, but was the victim of the sergeant's hysteria. Sampol then turned his weapon on himself, refusing to ask for succor or leniency.

Students joining in the search for evidence of the Machado regime's cruelty in suppressing opponents, reported the discovery of a human skeleton in the premises of a residence occupied by Rafael Rull, a former secret policeman now held in principle for trial.

Colonel Luis Delrosal, former chief of the Oriente military district, was arrested and held in Fort Cabana, outside Havana, on charges of malfeasance.

Leaders of the ABC and the De Cespedes administration sought to check the individual handling of these cases which is causing unrest in the capital. Officials announced possession of ABC membership identification papers would not serve as protection for anyone found violating the peace.

United States Ambassador Welles, who has taken a leading part in mediating the political problems of Cuba, said in a statement today: "In my judgment, it is absolutely essential that the government maintain its guarantee of lives and property and individual rights, and see to it that all laws are strictly enforced at all times that only legal methods and civil tribunals shall judge and punish persons accused of assassinations or malversation of funds."

The former Cuban ruler remained in seclusion here, where he fled when revolutionaries overthrew his long control of the island government.

President De Cespedes and his family moved into the presidential palace, despite earlier promises they intended to remain in their own residence, the chief executive going to the palace only to handle government work.

MACHADO MAY PROCEED FROM NASSAU TO CANADA

NASSAU, Bahamas Islands, Aug. 20.—(AP)—An aide to former President Machado, of Cuba, today said it was possible the party would leave here for Canada next Sunday. Previous statements had said Machado would go direct to the United States and join his family in Philadelphia.

Drexels Here for 'Few Days'; Newlyweds' Home Undecided

MR. AND MRS. ANTHONY J. DREXEL III.

Cupid, who sometimes laughs at other things than locksmiths, or being too considerate to laugh, manages a tender smile, was intrenched in a bridal suite at the Hotel Biltmore Sunday, presiding over Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel III.

The scion of the wealthy banking family of Philadelphia, and the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Howard, of Atlanta, who eloped to Washington, D. C., Saturday afternoon and were married that night by a probate judge, seemed to be dividing their time between receiving congratulations and making their future home.

The fortunate friends were many, but young Mrs. Drexel excused herself long enough to speak to the press over the telephone and to assure her caller that if he cared to call again "in two days" she would be glad to state their plans.

"We probably will be in Atlanta for four days," she said. "Then we plan to go to New York and perhaps to Philadelphia, though I am not certain about Philadelphia. I really don't know whether we will return to Atlanta immediately."

In view of the fact that Mr. Drexel's mother, who is in Nassau, was reported to have denied the engagement of her son and Miss Howard as late as Saturday night, it seemed proper to ask if the young couple had heard from Mrs. Drexel senior since the marriage ceremony.

"I really don't know," said Mrs. Drexel.

MISSOURI VOTES 3 TO 1 FOR REPEAL 'Show Me' State Becomes 22d To Ratify Twenty-first Amendment.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Repeal leaders, jubilant over their smashing victory in Missouri, today announced the formation of an organization to suggest regulatory laws for the sale and distribution of liquor in the state.

More than 600,000 voters expressed their sentiment in yesterday's repeal election, with a majority of more than 3 to 1 favoring abolition of the 18th amendment. Unofficial reports from 3,449 of the state's 4,104 precincts showed 433,416 ballots for repeal and 135,580 against.

Co-operation of organized drys in the passing of possible liquor control laws and in the activities of any special legislative session which might be called was a matter of conjecture tonight.

P. A. Tate, head of the state Anti-Saloon League, said prohibition leaders had not agreed upon a definite program for the future. He said the prohibition advocates participate in yesterday's election. Efforts of his organization centered on attempts to prevent the balloting. He said today the result of the election will be chaotic.

21 Winners in $1,300 Ad Contest Will Be Announced Next Sunday

By JAY ORR JR. There are going to be 21 happy and proud people in Atlanta next Sunday morning. The 21 people will be those who win the prizes in the $1,300 cash prize ad-writing contest being sponsored by The Constitution and many of Atlanta's leading establishments.

Expected to be the winners are those who win the first three prizes, for their advertisements will be published in the big Sunday Constitution. It will be quite an honor to be one of the first three prize winners, as there will be thousands of Atlantans competing for the cash prizes.

It is highly probable that the ad-writing contest will bring to light unknown talent and ability. Many people do not know their capabilities until they endeavor to do a certain thing.

The advertising profession is a lucrative one and many of the large advertising campaigns have been suggested by amateurs who had an idea and followed through on it.

"LITTLE FELLOWS" NEXT ON SCHEDULE FOR CHIEF OF NRA

With Major Industries Nearly Out of Way, Johnson Reveals Plans for Door-to-Door Drive.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—With a majority of the nation's major industries under the blue eagle, Hugh S. Johnson today announced the opening of a week from tomorrow of the greatest drive since World War was to put over President Roosevelt's recovery program by fall.

Believing that with steel, oil and lumber under the NRA's banner, the crisis of the campaign to get the big industries under trade codes has been surmounted, the tireless administrator turned to the next phase of his program to create millions of jobs.

He announced plans for opening a house-to-house and store-to-store canvass to place a blue eagle in the window of every producer, middleman and consumer.

Leading this drive, which is patterned after the Liberty loan campaigns, will be nationally known men and women, including Alfred E. Smith, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Speaker Henry T. Rainey, Mrs. Emily Nepper Blair, Ruth Bryan Owen, and Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

A role of fair competition for the bituminous coal industry was being written tonight by the recovery administration, as new efforts to bring conflicting elements of the business together collapsed.

General Johnson and two of his aides, Deputy Administrator Kenneth M. Simpson and General Counsel Donald Richards, worked on the draft far into the night.

They expected to hand it to the operators tomorrow, but kept its terms a secret meanwhile.

"We're writing up a few suggestions," Johnson said.

It was understood upon high authority that the administration did not intend to toss the code on the table and say "sign on the dotted line," as it did with the oil industry. But the administration feels the coal industry will not be able to get along until some definite proposal is placed before them. They will be permitted to suggest amendments, it was said, but not to renew the bitter dissensions that led them to submit 20 different codes.

At the same time the industrial administrator announced approval of several re-employment agreements for 17 industries bringing their thousands of workers under the shorter hour-higher wage program of the NRA.

The industries were: Butter, furniture, business furniture, equipment and supply, wholesale hardware, chewing gum manufacturing, sheet metal distributing, file manufacturing, cutlery manufacturing, standardized shoe assembled metal tanks, alloy casting, drug label and box, pickle packing, optical wholesale, heat exchange, brush manufacturing, velvet manufacturing and robe manufacturing.

Sleeps Late. Leaving his office last night soon after midnight, the administrator took a rest and slept late today for the first time in a long while. He did not arrive at his office until after noon but then plunged into the coal controversy, cutting Dr. Alexander Sachs, his chief economist, to his side.

The new week found 14 industries enlisted under the NRA: Cotton textiles, rubber, leather, silk, wool, fur, paper, glass, cement, brick, tile, stone, paint, and varnish.

Mrs. Arkwright Named To U. S. Welfare Body

Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, prominent Atlanta woman and wife of the president of the Georgia Power Company, Sunday was appointed one of 32 women on the national women's committee to lead the 1933 mobilization for human needs. The appointment was made by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the committee, and Newton D. Baker, chairman of the 1933 mobilization.

The women selected will head welfare crusades in more than 400 cities. Mrs. Arkwright stressed the part private social agencies must play in the recovery program and urged Mrs. Arkwright and the other members of the committee to lend their aid in seeing that the program was carried out.

Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago; Mrs. Nicholas P. Brady, of New York; and Mrs. Marcus C. Bloss, of San Francisco, are vice chairmen of the committee, and Miss Ruth Hill, of the Family Welfare Association of America, is executive secretary.

Governor and Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, heading one of the largest delegations ever to travel officially from the state, were to arrive in Chicago early today, primed to advertise the Empire State of the South at the Century of Progress exposition.

In holiday mood, the chief executive, his official staff, and a group of friends, numbering more than 200, looked forward to Tuesday when Georgia Day will be celebrated at the exposition grounds. Members of the Georgia Century of Progress committee predicted that more than 3,000 persons from the state would be present when officials of the World's Fair will officially welcome Governor Talmadge, his staff and other leaders in the state.

The party left Atlanta Sunday noon

Cadiz Bull Fight Crowd Cheers Roosevelt's Son

CADIZ, Spain, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. today was cheered as he arrived at a bull fight here. The American president's son was further honored when a bull was dedicated to him by Diego Gomez Laine, noted bull fighter.

Franklin later wrote Gomez Laine a note in which he extended his congratulations, said he felt honored and informed the matador he would send him a present when he returned to the United States.

He later left for Cordoba en route for Madrid after visiting vineyards in the vicinity.

PROGRESS OF NRA CHEERS ROOSEVELT AT SUMMER HOME

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Happy over the progress of the national recovery campaign, President Roosevelt came home today to guide the new deal from the study of the family home on the banks of the Hudson river.

The chief executive made it plain upon his arrival home that he expected the code fixing hours of work and minimum wages for the disordered coal industry to follow within 48 to 72 hours the new charters agreed upon last night for the oil, steel and lumber groups.

With these basic industries lined up for a new order providing more jobs and a living wage, Mr. Roosevelt expects Labor Day to see the fulfillment of a reorganized American industry.

He grants there is difficulty in bringing the hundreds of bituminous coal mine operators into union under one working agreement, but he is sure of resolving the coal code as well as the automobile charter during the ensuing few days.

Obviously relieved by the progress of the recovery drive which was climaxed last night by the signing of the oil and steel codes just before he left the White House, Mr. Roosevelt smiled broadly as he left his special train amid applause early this morning at Highland, New York, across the Hudson river from his home.

Mrs. Anna Curtis Hall, his daughter, and her children, "Sister" and "Buzzie," were waiting at the station and accompanied him to his open car across the bridge at Poughkeepsie and on up the Albany road to the family estate on the border of Hyde Park.

Despite the early hour on Sunday, crowds were gathered along the route and he waved a response to the welcome received along the way.

Driving into the family place he was surprised to find a crowd of the corn in the front yard. It had grown considerably since his departure from here a week ago.

Mrs. Frances Roosevelt Sr., the mother of the president, was standing on the front steps awaiting Mr. Roosevelt. He received a kiss from her. Before entering the house he was surrounded by newspapermen and to them he spoke his confidence over the progress of the recovery drive.

Time Needed. Mr. Roosevelt feels that time is essential to bring the long disordered coal industry into a working unit. For instance, the spokesmen were negotiating at Washington sometimes represent as many as 500 different companies. They can not always speak for all of these.

But there was no doubt about the optimism of the chief executive for a

Seven Burn to Death After Highway Crash

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 21.—(AP)—(Monday)—Seven persons lost their lives and 12 others were injured today when a truck carrying a load of lumber crashed into a car on a highway near Holly Oak, Del.

One of the trucks, bearing Pennsylvania license plates, was loaded with lumber. The other was a Maryland vehicle loaded with cans which police said they believed may have contained explosives.

None of the victims was immediately identified and police said some of the dead were burned beyond recognition. The crash was followed immediately by a light explosion and a moment later by a heavier blast.

Another large party numbering about 300 and including the members of the Georgia Century of Progress commission left Atlanta Sunday afternoon aboard the Georgia state special over the N. C. & St. L. railroad.

Scott W. Allen, president of Rogers Stores, Inc., and chairman of the commission, was unable to make the trip and designated Roy LeCraw, vice chairman, to take his place.

Mr. Allen and other members of the commission organized the party,

SURVIVORS TELL OF SUDDEN FURY SMASHING BOATS

No Passengers Found After Four Small Craft Capsize in Tremendous Surf Stirred by Winds of Hurricane Force.

BEACH GUARDS SAVE 100 AT OCEAN CITY

Only One of 38 Fishing Boats Out of One City Is Able To Make Port Hours After Blow.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Whipped into a raging fury by a wind that rose up suddenly and without warning from the east, the Atlantic ocean claimed an unknown number of lives today and dealt out damage that could not be estimated tonight.

Small fishing boats bore the brunt of the attack of waves and wind in a storm which survivors said had not been equalled in years. Battered and worn, the craft reached harbor hours after the crest of the storm with stories of hardships while coast guardsmen and others tried to check accurately on the number of missing.

Three bodies have been recovered—those of Theodore Van Sant, 58, of this city, veteran skipper of the sail boat "Ellie"; Harry R. Smith, of Camden, lost off the Longport inlet when the Anna M. of Ocean City, capsized, and the body of an unidentified man brought into Cape May harbor by Charles Curran, head of the Zion Oil Company, Philadelphia, who picked up the corpse and three children from the wreckage, beating his way to warmer climes off Cold Spring harbor, Cape May.

Two others were believed to be lost but their bodies have not been recovered. They are Wilbur Lukens, of Philadelphia, many years keeper of the Philadelphia National League baseball park, and "Sop" Bruner, of Marmora, both of whom were aboard Bruner's 18-foot craft. Two other men, Allen McLaughlin, of Ocean City, and Frank Hunter, Philadelphia, employed as assistant to Lukens, fought their way ashore through giant combers with the aid of life belts.

They told coast guards at Corson's inlet that they had seen their companions clinging to the capsized boat as they were swept away after donning the life preservers.

Captain Percy Mathews, Corson's inlet, skipped the search crew for a search for them, but without success. At 8 p. m. the wreckage of the boat drifted ashore at Staghaven.

Captain Van Sant, who drowned when his 30-foot sail boat "Ellie" capsized at the sand bar off the inlet. Six passengers were on board, but were rescued by craft which sped to their aid.

The storm was regarded here as one

St. Louis Epidemic Claims 12th Victim

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The total of a series of fatalities traced to "sleeping sickness" was raised to 12 tonight with the death of Mrs. Mary C. Joachim, 50, of suburban Garden-ville.

Eight new cases, all in St. Louis county, were reported today, increasing the number of known encephalitis patients to 129.

Dr. J. P. Leake, senior surgeon of the United States public health service, said today experiments would soon be made on monkeys in an effort to ascertain if possible how the malady is transmitted.

MILTON J. DANIEL DIES IN GRIFFIN

Banker Had Been Prominent in Georgia Civic Work and Business.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Aug. 20.—Milton Joseph Daniel, vice president of the Commercial and Savings Bank of Griffin and prominent Georgian, died at his home Sunday afternoon following a two-year illness.

Mr. Daniel was prominent for many years in Red Men circles, being great keeper of the records for Georgia, and great representative to the great council of the United States. He also took prominent part among Odd Fellows.

For many years he was connected with the Georgia National Guard; was captain of Spelling Grays and later paymaster for the United States for Georgia troops. He was adjutant general of Georgia during part of the time the World War was waged, and he was brigadier general of national guard when he retired several years ago.

Mr. Daniel at the time of his death was district manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Prior to that he was secretary and treasurer of the Rushton Cotton Mills and before that was cashier of the Savings Bank of Griffin, and he was brigadier general of national guard when he retired several years ago.

He is survived by two sons, Milton J. Jr., and Clay, both of Griffin; his wife and one daughter, Miss Katherine Walker, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Pittman Funeral Home, the old Daniel home place where he was born and reared. Interment will be in Oakhill cemetery at Griffin. Rev. Fred Gilson, pastor of the First Methodist church, will officiate.

PORTER HEADS GROUP AIDING NEGRO COLLEGE

MACON, Ga., Aug. 20.—(P)—The financial director of Central City College, an institution for negroes, owned and operated by the negro Baptists of Georgia, has been turned over to a group of Macon citizens with indications that thousands of dollars will be spent within the next few months for retirement of debts and needed improvements.

Leading the group of Macon men interested in the school is James H. Porter, vice president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, who has organized an advisory board for the college and the negro Baptists of the state have given this board the entire financial direction of the school. The board has appointed a secretary, a treasurer and an assistant treasurer and through these officers will prepare a budget for the next school year.

In no way, however, will the board undertake to interfere with the actual management of the college by the negro Baptists of Georgia. Mr. Porter is chairman of the advisory board. Serving with him are Dr. W. G. Lee, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank and Trust Company, treasurer; H. P. Fleming, director, connected with the First National Bank and Trust Company, assistant treasurer; Arthur Lewis, Macon attorney, secretary; Kyle T. Alford, chairman of the Georgia Education Association; Rev. S. J. Baker, Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver, Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer University; T. E. Ryals, Macon attorney, and B. E. Willingham Jr., business man.

At the request of the board, negro Baptists of the state have named an associate or co-ordinating committee to work with the Macon group. The appointees are: Dr. S. S. Crawford, Atlanta, executive secretary of the convention; Rev. W. F. Paschall, Atlanta; Rev. W. M. Phillips, Rev. W. M. Hall and Rev. J. H. Gadsden, Macon; Rev. G. J. Lane, Tivy; Rev. J. A. Wilson, Savannah, and Rev. P. P. Reid, Columbus.

The Central City College is an accredited junior institution and has spent many years in the training of negro youth in Georgia.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN N. Y. PLANE CRASH

LEEDS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Two persons were killed today when the airplane in which they were riding crashed at the airport here.

The dead: Charles Timmerman, 47, Catskill, pilot. Henry Gastrock, 14, Glendale. Witness said Timmerman, who had been taking passengers on flight over the Catskill mountains, apparently lost control of the plane when it plunged from an altitude of 1,000 feet.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Port News.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—(P)—Arrived: Cornelia, Tampa; Providence, Philadelphia; Howard, Jacksonville.

Sailed: Malchase, coastwise; Cornelia, Wilmington, N. C.; Providence, Jacksonville; Howard, Philadelphia; City of Lille (British), Far East.

Leaders Exchanged.

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 20.—Savannah and LaGrange are to exchange Salvation Army leaders. Captain and Mrs. Harry Ward, now in Savannah, are to go to LaGrange, and Captain and Mrs. William Lovick, in charge at the latter city, are to come here.

Barnesville Revival.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 20.—Rev. Charles H. Germon, of Woodbury, is conducting a revival meeting at Shiloh church in Lamar county this week, holding two services a day. He is a former pastor of the church.

State Deaths And Funerals

MRS. D. NATIONS.

SENOIA, Ga., Aug. 20.—Mrs. D. Nations, 76, died at the home of her stepson, J. J. Nations, here today. Mrs. Nations was reared in Fayette county and lived there until three years ago when she and her husband moved to Carroll county, and resided there until six months ago when she moved to Senoia.

Mrs. Nations is survived by her husband; one son, two daughters and five stepsons. Funeral services will be held at the Baptist church in Tyron Monday at 2:30 p. m., the Rev. Chester Adams officiating.

Federal Government Comes to Aid Of Thomas Cattle Imperiled by Pest

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 20.—Dr. H. B. Raffertysper, of Moultrie, in charge of parasitic control work for the federal government in this section, and Dr. J. C. White, of the state department of agriculture, have been in Thomasville and Thomas county this past week-end investigating the activities of the blow fly and screw worm, a new pest which for the past four weeks has been attacking with disastrous results all kinds of live stock.

Specimens of the fly's larvae, from which the screw worm is hatched in an incredibly short time, have been sent to Washington for examination. While these gentlemen did not officially designate the new worm as the screw worm, those familiar with the pest and its habits have so designated it.

Meantime, pending some possible action by the state and federal government to aid in combating the ravages of the worms which are destroying cattle, hogs, horses and mules, with many instances of domestic animals such as dogs and cats being affected, efforts are being made under the direction of County Agent P. H. Ward to prevent all possible losses through quick treatment of infected animals, and by burning and destroying the carcasses of all live stock killed by the worms.

Cattle herds and hogs and other live stock are now under the closest scrutiny by their owners, and all known methods for keeping the flies away from the animals to prevent the deposit of eggs which hatch the worms are being taken.

Unless controlled quickly a serious menace to live stock here and elsewhere in this section is presented, and already heavy losses have been sustained.

HOLDING MOVEMENT GAINS IN MOULTRIE

MOULTRIE, Ga., Aug. 20.—A well-defined holding movement has developed among the cotton growers of the Moultrie section, warehousemen here say. Nearly all of the staple gathered during the early part of the season was sold as rapidly as it was needed. The several thousand bales of old cotton carried over were nearly sold before the recent break in prices. Gin prices, which were $5 per bale at most points when the season first began, have generally been reduced to $4 per bale, reports received here indicate. Cotton pickers, however, haven't been cut. The prevailing price for this work is 50 cents per 100.

SAVANNAHANS ATTEND EFFINGHAM SERVICES

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—A large number of Savannahans went to the famous Springfield Methodist camp meeting grounds in Effingham county to attend services today.

Rev. C. M. Meeks, of Savannah, presiding elder of the Savannah district of the South Georgia conference, is in direct charge of the Springfield meeting and he has a corps of very able ministers under him who are holding the preaching. Alton P. Nease is in charge of the music with Mrs. William Brunar, of Batesburg, S. C., at the piano.

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD GOES TO SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—The Georgia public service board of the federal emergency administration of public works will spend Monday and Tuesday here, making proposals to be submitted by Mayor Gamble, George W. Tiedeman, of the Chatham county commissioners, and others interested.

Savannah is showing unusual interest in the visit of the commission because two members of it are natives of Savannah. J. Houston Johnston, the engineer on the board, is a native of this city and so is Arthur Lucas. On Tuesday all of the visitors will be guests of the Savannah Rotary Club.

EDWARD COMPTON GETS SAVANNAH NEWS POST

Succeeds Mayor Gamble as Editorial Writer.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—The Savannah Morning News has announced that Edward G. Compton has been assigned to the editorial desk of that newspaper and is to have charge of the editorial page.

The announcement comes as the result of Thomas Gamble, mayor of Savannah, surrendering the office of editorial writer for the paper.

Since the illness of Dan G. Bickers, editor of the Morning News, a year ago, Mr. Gamble has done the editorial work on the News in addition to his duties as mayor and as editor of the Naval Stores Review.

Mr. Compton has done considerable work in the north, south and west. He was the city editor of several daily newspapers in Ohio and Pennsylvania. For five years, from 1912 to 1917, he was editor of the Coshocton (Ohio) Times-Age. He has also done newspaper work in the Hawaiian Islands and was at one time employed on the Japan Times in Tokyo.

Falls to Death.

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 20.—(P)—Misjudging the distance in a delayed parachute leap from 2,500 feet, Glen Ackert, 28, of Lewistown, Pa., fell to his death today in the backyard of a home near Altoona airport.

Ga. Consumers and Workers Unite In Furthering Recovery Program

LaGRANGE, August 20.—Representatives of 30 women's organizations of the city met Saturday to plan a concerted drive to secure the pledge of every citizen of LaGrange and Troup county to support the national recovery program and to buy only from firms that fly the blue eagle.

The meeting was called by Miss Margaret Edmondson, president of the LaGrange Woman's Club, and was addressed by Rev. W. E. Howard, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Frank P. Longley, both of whom compared the present NRA consumer drive to fight the depression to actual warfare with a foreign foe.

The drive to secure consumers' pledges will get under way next week and plans are being made to complete the campaign to secure every Troup citizen's pledge before September 1.

CEDARTOWN WORKERS

TO ADOPT NRA CODE
CEDARTOWN, Ga., Aug. 20.—CEDARTOWN is feeling a material benefit in business pickup following the adoption of the textile NRA code. All mills are running on full time and under the code.

The mills made no great increase in numbers of employees, however, the wage scale jumped tremendously, many instances over a hundred percent and most of the merchants are feeling the new impetus with better business. A number of the stores in town have taken on additional employees, and report they are exceptionally busy.

Cotton Is Plowed.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Aug. 20.—A farmers of Polk county who signed to plow up cotton have complied, according to report of County Agent W. F. Garner. Mr. Garner also reports a crops look exceptionally well, and there are very few boll weevils in evidence.

GARMENT STRIKE SETTLED IN N. Y.

60,000 Workers To Receive More Pay and Work Fewer Hours.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Grover A. Whalen, NRA mediator, announced today after an all-night session with representatives of workers and employers that the strike of 60,000 dress industry employees had been settled.

"This was not merely a settlement of another labor dispute," he said, "it was the wiping out of the sweatshop, the most oppressive wrong that American labor has suffered."

Whalen also numbered recognition on the part of employers of the principle of collective bargaining. Raising of wage standards and reduction of working hours as among the major results of the settlement.

"The hours of more than 60,000 workers," he said, "will be cut from unlimited length to a fixed 35 hours per week. Many have been working 75 hours for a pittance."

Whalen's announcement of a "settlement" today said wages had been fixed as follows:

Cutters of lower priced garments (retailing under $3.75), $45 a week. For higher priced dresses, $50.

C. C. Camp Men Eat 9,000,000 Eggs Monthly

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Nine million eggs a lot of eggs, but that is the number the 300,000 members of the civilians conservation corps eat every 30 days.

Figures prepared by war department statisticians for Robert Fehner, conservation corps director, show the outdoor work in the forests is developing tremendous appetites in the corps.

East month the workers consume 1,125,000 pounds of bacon, 5,625,000 pounds of beef, 9,000,000 eggs, 1,125,000 pounds of coffee, 6,150,000 pounds of flour and 2,250,000 pounds of pork.

In a recent flapjack census at the Verrill mill camp at Missoula, Montana, 200 men ate 2,200 hot cakes at one breakfast. The weight of men throughout the corps has increased to the average of 122 pounds since they enlisted a few months ago.

400,000 JOBS SEEN IN 3 NEW CODES

Steel, Oil and Lumber Agreements Affect Many Workers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Steel, oil and lumber will require an estimated 400,000 additional employees under codes signed by President Roosevelt in the busiest week-end since formation of the NRA.

The steel code contains the customary NRA provisions that employees shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively. No one is compelled to join a company union.

Hours of labor are fixed at a 40-hour week average over a three-month period, with a maximum for any one week of 48 hours and six days. If on any date after November 1, steel production reaches 60 per cent capacity, the 8-hour day becomes effective for all except supervisory, technical and emergency employees.

Wages are unchanged in view of a 15 per cent general increase since July 1. The steel companies estimate the present minimum averages at least 40 cents an hour. The code is effective for a 90-day trial period. Three NRA representatives, including Administrator Hugh Johnson, are to have access to the records of the Iron and Steel Institute and are to be allowed to meet with the board to insure compliance with the code.

The lumber code sets up a 40-hour week, with 48 hours permissible at seasonal peaks. Minimum wages range from 25 to 42 1/2 cents an hour depending on the locality.

The oil code sets up a 40-hour week, with 48 hours permissible at seasonal peaks. Minimum wages range from 25 to 42 1/2 cents an hour depending on the locality.

SOLUTION SOUGHT TO MILK PROBLEM

Overproduction Bringing Complaints From Dairymen's Organizations.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—To keep pace with the fast-moving recovery drive, the farm administration today began an intensive search for a solution of the perplexing problem presented by overproduction of milk, from which the American farmer gets his largest income.

In the making also were long-time programs for cotton, flue-cured tobacco and rice, and marketing agreements for several other products, but they were placed back of the immediate pressing issue of milk and its by-products.

Dairy men's organizations have complained bitterly that they are forced to pay higher prices for the things they buy because of the steps taken by the recovery administration and the farm administration too.

This complaint has been rather general from farmers lately so far as the recovery administration is concerned. Secretary Wallace has openly warned that his organization must keep step or agriculture will pay the penalty in higher costs, while the prices for their own products lag.

Farm officials are not forgetting that the recovery administration would feel it was keeping the recovery organization within hailing distance, at least, if it had a definite plan in mind for milk.

Various phases of this question have been touched upon in marketing agreements. One for the Chicago area has already been promulgated, although its operation is being held up by a test case in the courts. Tomorrow pacts for Philadelphia and Detroit are to be announced.

DEAF ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS, PLANS CAMPAIGN

Reorganization of the Dixie Association for the Deaf, which maintains homes at Moultrie, Fla., for the aged and infirm, was announced Sunday by officials of the association.

Jack Ogden, of Atlanta, was elected president of the Atlanta Local No. 1. Saturday night's meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. Leonard McLean was named vice president; J. William Scott, secretary, and Mrs. John Davis, treasurer.

A campaign to increase membership in the association and to raise funds for the maintenance of the Dixie Association for the Deaf Home will be started immediately. Delegates to the convention of the association in Birmingham on September 2 were named at the meeting which was presided over by Leonard Dickerson, with Percy Ligon acting as secretary.

House-to-House NRA Canvass Starts in Atlanta This Week

Local Leaders Hope City
Will Be First to Qualify
100 Per Cent in Program.

Leaders of the national recovery administration in Atlanta seem to have taken a page from fast-stepping Hugh S. Johnson's book.

Sunday the national administrator announced plans for a house-to-house canvass to put the blue eagle in the window of every producer, middleman and consumer. The canvass is to get under way on a national scale next week.

Robert E. Johnson, general chairman of the Atlanta campaign, and Herbert E. Choate, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will initiate a similar canvass in this city. They took the time to be able to report that Atlanta is the first large city in the nation to qualify 100 per cent in President Roosevelt's dramatic drive for economic recovery.

In a joint statement Saturday, the two leaders emphasized that the present "is no time to hold back." "Every employee should co-operate in restoring prosperity and relieving the unemployed," they asserted.

A block-by-block canvass will be initiated this week, they announced. An effort will be made to obtain the signatures of every citizen and employer. The men charged with the work will be expected to report on the NRA agreement.

The step is in furtherance of a determined effort to enlist Atlantans in the gigantic recovery campaign as soon as possible. Mr. Maddox, Mr. Choate and other leaders, expressed gratification that the city's business and the public thus far.

An analysis of questionnaires returned by 80 firms in the Atlanta area, disclosed to campaign officials that pay rolls had shown an increase of 23 per cent, with re-employment estimated at 13 per cent of the total number working at the time the campaign was inaugurated.

Nearly 4,000 firms are operating under the blue eagle in Atlanta, it was announced.

NRA CHIEF HOPES TO FINISH WORK BY NOVEMBER 15

Mr. Day by which time he expects to have the bulk of the nation's employees under permanent codes or temporary modified presidential re-employment agreements with millions of new jobs created; second, December 31, when the employment drive is expected to end.

But the drawing of the steel and oil industries under a code has worried him as a key step. Faced by these powerful industries with their ramified financial connections, Johnson was represented as believing that the winning of this battle last week would mark the turning point in the recovery program and it was won.

Once codes for all industries have been established, with purchasing power turned upward, Johnson intends to turn the long-time job of administrator over to someone else and return to his industrial life as an associate of Bernard M. Baruch, with whom he has been affiliated since World War days when they labored together on the war industries board.

Accompanying Johnson's exit will be some of the other key men of the hastily thrown together organization. Edward F. McGrady, assistant administrator for labor and former legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, has been appointed assistant secretary of labor but will retain his post until November 15 in the NRA.

Asked by newspapermen who will take his place, McGrady said "no one," adding that "our job will be completed by them."

Donald R. Richberg, counsel for years for the Association of Railway Labor Executives, gave up a lucrative private law practice at Johnson's insistence to aid in the recovery program, and he is anxious to return to it.

All of these plans are dependent, of course, upon the course of the NRA program to end the economic emergency. As for the permanent administration, this is the view of General Johnson, who largely drafted the recovery act.

"I have said many times that the object of this act is not a long-term proposition, but it is to see if you could improve the chaotic conditions that exist in some industries, and the violently fluctuating conditions which exist in industries due to seasonal and cyclical variations, the theories and fallacies to which a great many men have subscribed."

"It is going to be tried in these industries and permits them to come in and say what they will do to iron out destructive tendencies in their own groups. That had been overlooked. They will be given that opportunity."

"Look at the cotton textile industry, that has been degrading labor and bringing down living conditions until the present time. Now they think they can swing themselves out of it. One of the greatest things they have tackled was the wiping out of the sweatshop."

"Now if that succeeds and it has got two years to be tried, I suppose that the good that remains in this act will continue and the bad will die by experience. At least we will have a chance to get away from professional conjecture and get down to whether it lives or not. If it is good it lives, and if it is not, it will die."

NINE IN SOUTHEAST DIE IN ACCIDENTS

Mississippi, Tennessee,
Virginia Each Report
Two Fatalities.

By the Associated Press.

Nine deaths in accidents were reported in the southeast this week-end. Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia each reported two fatalities, and Georgia, Florida and Louisiana, one each. Automobiles accounted for six of the deaths, electrocution one, an explosion one, and lightning one.

Mississippi—Jeff Guyton, 20, was electrocuted at Georgetown as he came in contact with a wire while working in a garage. At West Point, Grady Davis, 33, was killed by a bolt of lightning.

Tennessee—W. J. Snyder, 60, of Birmingham, died of injuries suffered in an automobile mishap, at Pulaski. Tenn. Burdett Nelson Jr., 9, son of Mrs. B. B. Nelson, Decatur, Ala., was killed by a hit-and-run driver. The mother and son were visiting in Memphis.

Georgia—The 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Dixon, of Sparks, was hurt fatally as a truck on which she and her parents were riding overturned, near Tifton.

Florida—Miss Jimmie Ferrell, 18, of Tallahassee, was killed and five women were injured near Cross City as a tire blew out and their automobile overturned.

Louisiana—Burns received in an explosion at the home of John A. Cordaro, 35, of New Orleans.

Virginia—Mrs. Myrtle Neisler, of Kings Mountain, N. C., was killed and four persons were injured in a collision of two automobiles in Fairfax, Va. At Winchester, Maurice Milburn, 21, was injured fatally as his automobile collided with a truck.

German Hurricane.

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A hurricane today struck a tent camp at Oberwiesenthal where more than 40,000 Hitler youths had assembled for exercises. Bruises were suffered by a number of the youngsters who were hit by tent poles and other objects, and seven required hospital treatment. One of these died of a skull fracture.

Spring harbor, Cape May, because of the rough surf pounding the entrance to Ocean City. Thirty-eight boats are known to have been out. The only one to reach port so far brought tales of seeing wreckage all the way in.

Beach guards at Ocean City saved more than 100 persons who were caught in a huge wave that swept in suddenly at Tenth street about an hour after the wind struck off the coast. After a careful check police and beach authorities believe all who were caught in the wave and its backwash were saved. Many were injured.

Cost guards have been unable to respond to all calls and volunteers recruited from among private boat owners are assisting them.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Mrs. Louise Williams, 20, who resides at a hotel at 73 Cone street, was treated at Grady hospital early Sunday morning for poison she took in an attempt to end her life, according to hospital and police reports. The woman said she was tired of living. She was released.

Alfred Smith, of 113 Wylie street, who was stabbed by a companion late Saturday night, remained Sunday in a serious condition at Grady hospital. A transfusion was given Smith Sunday morning with blood furnished by an Atlanta man who answered a radio appeal for donors. More than 25 persons went to the hospital after the radio broadcast asking blood for Smith.

Residence of Will Davis, of 825 Juniper street, was broken into by a burglar early Sunday morning, he reported to police. The burglar entered through a side door and cut the telephone wire and Miss Annie Buchanan, and stole a pocketbook containing $3 from the room of J. Wolcott. Miss Huff frightened the man away and he screamed as he re-entered her room.

Watch and chain was stolen from the residence of A. C. Postell, of 342 Moreland avenue, early Sunday morning, he reported to police. The burglar gained entrance through a front window.

John Morris Sr., former head of the Keely Company, Sunday remained in a critical condition at his home at 1485 Peachtree street, according to his son, John Morris Jr. Physicians say there is little hope for his life. Mr. Morris has been ill since he was stricken with a heart attack a week ago today.

Watermelon cutting will be given by the Atlanta Bar Association at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the rear of the courthouse, Robert C. Alston, president of the association, announced. The affair starts a campaign for new members and all Atlanta lawyers are invited to attend.

Tenth Ward Civic League will meet at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the Capitol View Masonic Club temple, it was announced. Paving of Genessee avenue, and other matters, will be discussed.

Ladies' night will be observed at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night by the Joseph C. Greenfield Lodge No. 400, F. A. M. All Masons and their wives and friends are invited to attend by Dr. Thomas Gibbs Fowler, master.

Rev. Jacob Gartenhaus, missionary to the Jews for the Southern Baptist Convention, will speak to the women of Druid Hills Baptist church at 10:30 o'clock this morning. This is a change of time for the regular third Monday meeting.

Atlanta representatives of the federal emergency relief administration are looking forward to the arrival of Harry L. Hopkins, the national administrator, who leaves Washington by plane today on a 3,000-mile tour against 764.

EX-N. J. SENATOR COMMITTS SUICIDE

Joseph F. Wallworth, 59, Found Dead in Home at Camden.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Joseph F. Wallworth, 59, former president of the New Jersey state senate, was found dead in his home at Haddonfield today with a bullet wound in his head which authorities said was self-inflicted.

The Wallworth chauffeur, John Sadler, found the body when he went to the house in response to a telephone call from his employer.

A note on the kitchen table informed Sadler he would find Wallworth in a third floor room and instructed him to notify Cecil Bentley, Wallworth's son-in-law, the coroner and police.

Investigating, Sadler discovered Wallworth on the floor with a wound in his left temple, his hands folded and a pistol nearby.

The victim had been alone just before his death, his wife having gone to visit their daughter, Mrs. Cecil Bentley, in a hospital.

An influential figure in south Jersey politics, Wallworth had served in both branches of the legislature and was at one time chairman of the Camden county republican committee.

Once reputedly wealthy, he was engaged until recent years in the cotton and wool business in Philadelphia. Later he dealt in real estate. Coroner Arthur C. Holl listed Wallworth's death as a suicide but no motive was advanced.

WALLACE D. BAKER.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Wallace D. Baker, 72, who had lived at Bonita Springs, near here since retiring from business in Boston in 1919, died today. Survivors include the widow, a daughter and son, all of Bonita Springs. Funeral services will be held Tuesday and the body sent to Boston for burial.

MRS. SARAH DICKINSON.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Carpenter Dickinson, 90 years old, who on August 4 had been married to George Dickinson for 71 years, died at her home on the Pratt estate here late last night. They had been married for 71 years. She had been ill since a stroke of paralysis last June.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, two daughters, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

DR. NELLIS FOSTER.

CAMDEN, Me., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Dr. Nellis Barnes Foster, prominent New York physician, fell dead today on the lawn of his summer home here. He was 58 years old.

CHARLES M. MILLER.

WINSTEDT, Conn., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Charles M. Miller, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., treasurer of Westchester county, died today at his summer home on Highland lake. He was 70 years old.

"I'M 'SPOILED' NOW FOR ANY CAR BUT Plymouth"

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH OFFICER HARVEY HAYES, DELAWARE STATE POLICE STATION No. 2, WILMINGTON, DELAWARE

"Speed? Pick-up? I had one of the boys clock me. She's good for 60 in second—85 in high!"

"Most cars eat oil at that speed—but not this baby. When I check up—my gauge reads 'full'."

"70-horsepower. Some power plant there, boy! And it doesn't keep you broke running it either."

AND UP F.O.B. FACTORY, DETROIT

"How do the boys like it? Say, there are eleven of us here at the station... and six of us have Plymouths of our own! And we get plenty of chance to judge cars on this job!"

"I Couldn't Stand
My Old Car after Driving a
Plymouth on Duty"

THEY'VE had three Plymouths at Station No. 2. Hard-riding Harvey Hayes drives one of them—when he isn't on a motorcycle.

And pushing his own "old crate" home (to use his words) didn't thrill him any after riding behind Floating Power from noon till midnight.

Now he has his own Plymouth. So have five others out of the eleven men at his station.

As Officer Hayes put it, they're all "spoiled" for anything else now—after learning first hand how Plymouth flashes away on pick-up, slips in and out of traffic, and brakes to smooth, quick, even stops in the tight spots.

Unless you're a state policeman, you may never get to put Plymouth's accelerator "down to the floor-boards." It has far more speed than you'll ever use in ordinary driving.

But you can sample Floating Power engine mountings—hydraulic brakes—rigid-X double-drop frame. You can see how smooth Plymouth is—how easily it handles—how quickly it responds to your foot on the accelerator. Just "look at all three" low-priced cars... ride in them and compare them.

Start looking now—prove Plymouth out on the road, and see for yourself what each low-priced car offers you for your money. There's a liberal education in car values in that way of buying.

Frank Speer's Dreams of Mat Title Were Rudely Broken!

Frank Speer has rheumatic twinges in his left leg every time he thinks of Jim Londos, the 'rassling king.'

The Georgia Tech tackle who played three years of good football at the Flats and who has developed into a real wrestling attraction after two years of trying, is to meet Jim McMillen here Tuesday night.

Speer met Londos after he had been in the game only a few months. He tells the story thusly:

"I was a little bit excited about meeting Londos. I didn't know what to do. So I just made up my mind I'd go in there and shoot all I had and see what happened."

"We got in the ring and they started us off. I tore in there and kept going as hard as I could. Londos kept working hard. I know I hurt him with several holds. But he just kept going."

"We had gone along for more than a half hour and I got Londos in a headlock. I punished him with several of those. Then he failed to pull me over with a flying mare and I slipped out and got a spread on him."

"I was lying there on the mat and I thought to myself, 'Frank you may be the champion in the morning.' I got kind of careless and he slipped his foot and kicked me off. He was on top of me and got that leg hold."

"I started for the ropes but the pain was too much. Londos started talking. 'You better give up, boy,' he said. But I gritted my teeth and started for the ropes again. I moved a foot maybe and had to stop. The leg was too painful. 'You better give up, boy. I don't want to hurt your leg,' said Londos. But I gave three or four more lunges before I did give up."

"I wasn't able to wrestle for six weeks. That leg hold is a hold. That was more than a year ago. I'd like to meet Jim Londos again. I learned plenty in that one match."

SPEER WAS REAL TACKLE.

Speer was a real football player. His last year saw him a bit below previous form but this was because he had been out a year because of scholastic difficulties.

I recall the 1928 team with which Speer played until he was ruled ineligible near the end of the season. He went with the team to Pasadena for the game at the Rose Bowl.

In scrimmages there before the game we used to sit in the stands and watch Speer smash up the varsity line. Coach Alexander's face would look a bit wistful at times but he was the first to spike reports that an effort was to be made to play Speer in the game with California since it was a post-season game and conference rules did not apply.

"No," said Coach Alex. He would play with the team he used in the south.

Had Speer been eligible the team would have been stronger. He was probably one of the best tackles in the south in 1928. He played out the 1929 season and a little later went into wrestling, being sponsored by Henry Weber, the Atlanta match-maker.

Speer showed in Atlanta more than a year ago. He has gone ahead rapidly and is a real drawing card in Washington and points east. But he'll never forget that first Japanese toe hold which Jim Londos applied.

FRANK SHIELDS CHUCKLES.

Since Frank Shields' sense of humor is unknown in this section, one may only assume that he is chuckling up his sleeve at the discomfort of the dignified and hide-bound U. S. L. T. A.

That austere body did not regard Shields as good enough for the Davis cup singles team. Not even as an alternate. They chose Allison and Vines and left Shields to his own amusement. And now, in the New York tournament, Shields beats Vines on one afternoon and comes back the next to defeat Allison. It will require a very brilliant come-back by Allison and Vines in the Forest Hills national tournament to make it possible for the U. S. L. T. A. to do anything else except create and recognize new tennis material.

The national matches at Forest Hills may also see our national tennis title gently but firmly removed from these United States. It appears that their defense must be made by someone other than Vines and Allison.

WE HAVE THE MATERIAL.

Since tournament tennis is quite professional in spirit, it seems that the tennis association might as well go ahead and begin spending money in the development of tournament players.

Expenses of the national team and the Davis cup team are borne by the association. Other tournament players have their expenses paid by the clubs holding tournaments. In this manner the tournament players play tennis for about seven to ten months of the year and are supported by tennis. To the casual observer this seems to be professionalism. But it isn't. It is only when Miss Helen Jacobs wants to autograph one of her books for people to buy that the association worries about professionalism. It solemnly forbade Miss Jacobs to do any such thing.

There is quite a lot of excellent tennis material in the United States. The association must have plenty of funds stored away, the gate receipts being enormous. The only procedure, since the association seems to value the Davis cup, is to spend some money to get it back. (Possession of the cup makes for a better "gate" in tournament play.)

The courts of France and England are quite different from our own and our players must be trained abroad for cup play. These he days of sorrow for the association. The situation reminds me very much of the sorrows of those who were searching for a white hope when Jack Johnson held the heavyweight title. And excites just about as much sympathy.

AND SPEAKING OF FIGHTS.

The Sharkey man remains a mystery. He was ever the timid one about fighting more than once or twice a year when he was one of the leading heavyweights.

And now look at him! He has signed to fight Kingfish Levinsky on September 15 at the White Sox baseball park. And also is signed to fight Tommy Loughran a couple of weeks later at Philadelphia.

Sharkey met Loughran in 1929 and stopped him in the third round of a scheduled 15-round engagement.

SPEED-MINDED.

Players of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league next spring will get coaching from Dean Cromwell, University of Southern California track mentor, on how to run faster.

NEW RULES.

The Montana fish and game commission recently wiped the slate clean of all fishing regulations, and with the aid of sportsmen's organizations established a complete new set of rules.

CLARK, HOPKINS' HEAD STARTERS IN JUNIOR GOLF

Forty-Four Youngsters Seek To Qualify at Ansley Park.

By Roy White.

Qualifying rounds for the annual Atlanta junior golf championship tournament will be played today over the Ansley Park course with Dave Clark and Charles Hopkins scheduled to start the journey at 8:30 o'clock. Others will follow at five-minute intervals during the morning and late entries will be started as they are filed. Entries will be received by Tommy Wilson, the Ansley Park professional, as long as time will permit the playing of 18 holes before dark.

The tourney is being sponsored by the Atlanta Golf Association and there is no entry fee for the youngsters.

Forty-four entries have been received late Sunday, assuring a record entry and others are expected to sign up and qualify today.

At least a dozen players, including Charles Barnes, the 1932 winner, Stanley Holditch, the 1932 runner-up, and Jack Cook, were just a few days over the age limit and will not be eligible to participate. The age limit is 16 years, five months and 20 days.

Pairings for the tourney will be made Monday by Ken Conner, chairman of the tourney committee for the Atlanta Golf Association. There is not an outstanding youngster in the group, leaving the field open for some keen competition. Several good scores were recorded in the practice rounds last week, but those players who turned in the good cards have not been so consistent.

BARNES BROTHERS. Luke and Ralph Barnes, two younger brothers of Pete and Tommy Barnes, have played well in the tourney. Allen and Dan Yates, brothers of Charlie Yates, also are entered and will be hard to beat.

TULANE STRONG IN PROSPECTIVE KICKING, PASSING

Versatility To Again Feature Surging Roof of Green Wave.

By Horace Renegar.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—Tulane's kicking and passing game, a dominant factor in both offense and defense for the past four years, bids fair to keep the gridiron opposition wary this fall.

The Green Wave has long been blessed with several handy punters, quick kick artists and aerial target men. The crop is again plentiful. "Little Monk" Simmons established himself as a remarkable punting prospect last year in his role of first sub for All-American Don Zimmerman. In fact, after Monk got into the season, he was reeling off 60-yard thrusts often. He also passes the ball well, both on short and long ones.

MENGE IS GOOD.

Francis (Pete) Menge also established himself last season as a passer to be heard from. This dynamic ball carrier was picking out pass receivers at 40 yards with remarkable accuracy in the last two Wave games last year. He also kicked consistently enough to be dependable.

"Little Preacher" Roberts is already well known as a passer and kicker who advanced to advantage, Johnny McDaniel kicks well and chunks the ball. Farrell Thomas kicks and passes while Lefty Brownson comes in the same category.

Bucky Bryan and Stanley Lodrigues, from the freshmen ranks, are rated excellent triple-threat prospects. Both looked like standouts a year ago as they took regular turns against the varsity and in first-year competition. Dick Page, reserve of last year, also looks well enough to handle that assignment when in the game.

Charlie Kyle, an end, did all of the kicking against Louisiana State last year, and did a very creditable job of it. Mito Phillips, another end, can kick the same. Like Brownson, Phillips passes the ball with his left hand. A half dozen other backfield prospects, including Howard Rau, Mack Burke and Jimmy Henderson, also can either pass or kick well enough to keep the opposition guessing.

'Y' Swimmers Win State Meet

Lowering every record except one the speedy Atlanta Y. M. C. A. swimmers easily won every first place in the annual state "Y" meet at LaGrange.

The beautiful pool of the LaGrange Country Club was decked in gay colors for the meet and afforded a beautiful setting for the successful meet. The events and winners of the meet follow:

200-Yard Relay—Austin, Alexander, Thomas and Russell, Atlanta.

100-Yard Breast Stroke—Neely, Atlanta.

50-Yard Free Style—Russell, first; Thomas, second; Atlanta.

200-Yard Free Style—Russell, Atlanta.

100-Yard Back Stroke—Neely, Atlanta.

100-Yard Free Style—Austin, Atlanta.

Fancy Dive—Alexander, Atlanta.

150-Yard Medley Relay—Thomas, Neely, Russell, Atlanta.

The Albany "Y" last year's champions, came in second with 15-year-old Tom Allen proving the star.

Scotch Foursome Held at Ansley

In a Scotch foursome at Ansley Park yesterday afternoon Mrs. C. E. Williamson and George Van Hart were first with a low gross score of 74.

Qualifying for the club championship is being held by Gene Gaillard and W. G. Bowen, who are tied with 72. Tommy Wilson, Ansley pro, is in charge.

SOLONS, GIANTS ARE CONDUCTING MAJOR RACES

Leaders Show No Signs of Slump in Bettering Positions.

By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Washington Senators and New York Giants, who not only have been giving signs of being the best teams in their respective leagues as well as the pace-setters, but appear to have "rattled" their pace so well that they are in little danger of a mid-August slump, brushed almost all opposition aside last week as they made their positions better than ever.

Washington ran off six triumphant games in a row in the midwest while the New York Yankees, second in the American league, struck a slump and the Senators increased their margin to 3 1/2 games. In addition, the Senators established a new season record for winning streaks as they made it 11 in a row.

The Giants, after dropping a Sunday game to Philadelphia, ripped off four straight victories and gained a six-game lead in the National league as the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs both ran into difficulties.

INDIANS CLIMB

Two other important points in the week's performances were Lou Gehrig's new major league "endurance" record with the Yankees, which he ran to 1,310 consecutive games yesterday after passing Everett Scott's old mark of 1,307 on Wednesday, and the power of the Cleveland Indians in climbing into third place in the American league.

Vince Dundee, Yarosz Meet For Title

What little action of significance there is scheduled in the boxing arenas of the country this week revolves about the middleweight division, where three separate and distinct champions reign in various parts of the world.

None of the three—Lou Brouillard, Gorilla Jones, or Marcel Thil, the Frenchman—swing into action, but Vince Dundee, considered by many experts as rightful claimant; as many of these meets Teddy Yarosz on the latter's home grounds in Forbes field, Pittsburgh, in a 10-round duel for the Pennsylvania 160-pound title Monday night.

Dundee might have had the New York recognition that now goes to Brouillard, the Worcester strong boy, but for a decision here last winter that still is considered one of the worst ever rendered in New York. The experts agreed to a man that Dundee gave Jebby, then recognized here as champion, a beating in 15 rounds, but officials ruled the match a draw. Jebby was knocked out last week by Brouillard in seven rounds.

With interest picking up in the middleweight class through Brouillard's victory and the possibility that Thil may later risk his French claims here, Dundee's tussle with Yarosz takes on added significance. The cagey veteran faces rugged opposition in the tough young Yarosz, a hefty hitter who has been beaten only a couple of times in his entire career.

Sammy Dick Slaughter, another middleweight contender, faces Tiger Roy Williams, of Chicago, in Indianapolis Wednesday night.

PIRKLE BOOKED ON CAIN CARD

Lope Tenorio, the Filipino welterweight champion, who in his last appearance here made an impressive showing, will face a strong opponent in California Billy Webb at the Cain card Wednesday night in the main 10-round bout of Matchmaker Gilbert's fight carnival.

The semi-windup will feature a newcomer to these parts from a little viewpoint, Billy Pirkle, although an Atlanta boy, has never shown here within the roped arena. Billy is rated as the best featherweight in the south, and will meet a suitable opponent in the semi-windup of eight rounds. Matchmaker Gilbert has been negotiating with three or four boys and will announce Pirkle's opponent shortly.

A strong preliminary card will support the feature bout. Popular prices will be charged and the card will be admitted free with paid escorts.

MISS NUTTHALL WINS FIRST SET IN GREAT STYLE

Victory Puts American Queen in Finals of National Tournament.

By Gayle Talbot.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—The home guard finally expelled Betty Nutthall from the women's tennis championships here today, but not until the battling British girl had won a set from Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, herself, and otherwise had been very obstinate about the whole affair.

Betty, who is big and blond and laughing and a great tennis player, started 6,000 spectators out of a year's growth by setting the world's No. 1 star back on her heels in the first set, 6-2, and putting up a magnificent fight for two more sets before she finally succumbed by scores of 2-6, 3-6.

In just 12 minutes, flat, Betty broke down Mrs. Moody's defense and rendered her beaten, baffled, in that startling first set. The matron who has won the national title seven times and has come to be regarded as invincible, virtually was outclassed for that time. Veteran observers rubbed their eyes, unbelieving, and grabbed for the record book.

ONLY THIRD SET LOSS.

They found it was only the third set lost by Queen Elizabeth since she last tasted defeat in 1929 at the hands of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, at Rye. Gwendolyn Sterry, of England, won a set from her at Wimbledon, in 1927, and that stood as the record until this year's Wimbledon, when Dorothy Round, of England, again turned the trick.

But in neither instance was Helen humbled so decisively as she was in those 12 mad minutes today. Fired to a high pitch, Miss Nutthall for the time played possibly the most magnificent tennis her career; better than in 1930, when she took the championship back to England. Mrs. Moody was playing her usual superb game, but even that couldn't stand up to Betty's scorching drives of the British girl.

Every shot Betty hit was an outright bid for the point. The crowd was treated to a most gripping spectacle of Mrs. Moody time and again just waving at balls that clipped the lines. So accurate was the Briton that she did not net a single ball during the match, and she won seven clean placements. As many more Mrs. Moody just managed to reach and knock weakly out. She scored 26 points in the first set.

LOT OF FUN.

If it is anti-climatic to record that things were different in the second and third sets, Helen, dabbling her brow with a handkerchief, was with a handkerchief about the size of a dollar bill, apparently unperturbed, went right on playing her game. No woman could have kept on playing at Betty's blazing pace of the first set. So Helen kept on hitting them until, eventually, Miss Nutthall batted one over the backline and came running to the net, her hand outstretched and still laughing. She had had a lot of fun for one day.

Checking back, it was found that Betty, despite her defeat, had registered 29 placements against 17 credits to Helen. In one sensational game in the first set she scored four straight, something a real Moody fan would have believed possible. Betty, however, made 34 outs for Mrs. Moody's 24, hit 15 into the net compared to Helen's 12, and committed six double-faults to Helen's one.

The victory for Miss Moody up for a shot at her eighth national crown. Tomorrow Helen Jacobs, the defending champion, and Dorothy Round, of England, tie up in the other semi-final match, and Tuesday Helen will play the winner.

Point score of the Moody-Nutthall match:

Reviewing the Shows

'Just Married' Offered for Week By Peruchi Players at Erlanger

"Just Married," one of the best laugh-producing farces ever offered on Broadway, where it ran for two years, is the offering this week by the Peruchi Players at the Erlanger theater, beginning with the performance to-night which starts at 8:15. It was written by Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," in collaboration with Adelaide Matthews, who was responsible for "Scrambled Wives," "Nightie Night," etc.

It is a story of a trans-Atlantic voyage from Bordeaux to New York, in which married and engaged couples of all varieties get terribly mixed up. It all started with the arrival on board of a youth who looked too long on the wine when it was red and it takes the unexpected appearance of the complications.

It is the type of play that offers the members of the Peruchi company every opportunity for the finest exploitation of their individual talents and, in addition, Mr. Peruchi has again provided a stage setting which will delight and bring applause all its own.

There has been no advance in prices and ladies, with escort, are still admitted for Monday nights, while Conductor Walter Sheets continues to provide musicians and singers who entertain from the pit before the show and between acts.

"Captured," at Georgia, "Better-Than-Average"
Despite some painfully inept handling of a basically sound dramatic theme, "Captured," this week's Georgia feature, contrives to be better than average film fare.

The basis for the story is the situation arising when Allison and Digby, played by Leslie Howard and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., are thrown together as prisoners of war in Germany. They have been lifelong friends. Allison had married just before going to the front as an aviator. In his absence Digby usurps his place in the affections of his young wife. To escape the intolerable situation that prevails because of his inability to tell Allison of his betrayal, Digby violates his friend's pledge to the camp commandant and escapes. Another prisoner commits a capital crime on the night of the escape and the British authorities return Digby to stand trial for it. Digby believes that Allison cannot stand his return because of his discovery of the betrayal. Digby is sentenced to die. The real criminal writes a confession to Allison and hangs himself. After a struggle with himself, Allison saves his friend. Then, in a particularly far-fetched anti-climax, appended to give "punch," we assume, Allison is executed to give freedom to Digby and the rest of the prisoners who make their escape in German airplanes from a near-by base.

Leslie Howard is good but has done much better work. Fairbanks continues to be markedly wooden. Paul Lukas as the gentlemanly German commandant gives the most natural performance. There are moments when the picture is definitely compelling, but many more where it fails to do so.

A Jack Hale cartoon and newsreel also are on view.

—LEWIS HAWKINS.

'She Done Him Wrong' At Fairfax Theater

That riotous piece of screen entertainment, "She Done Him Wrong," with the luscious Mae West in the star role, apparently can continue to show in theaters just beyond the city limits as many times as the managers wish, always to capacity houses.

It is now announced for a re-run engagement of two days at the Fairfax, in East Point, where it did the biggest business the theater has ever enjoyed only two weeks ago. Banned from Atlanta theaters for a natural no one has been able to discern, except the banners, the picture has broken every record in the history of screen exhibitions in America. It has played more than 6,000 return engagements since its first-run bookings.

CHUTE JUMPER KILLED.

'Tugboat Annie' Draws Big Crowd to Grand
"Tugboat Annie," which is now in its second week at Loew's Grand theater, has enjoyed a boxoffice business which is almost unprecedented in Atlanta. Certainly nothing like it has been seen in several years. Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, in the principal roles, have added to their already great laurels and the capacity audiences that have packed the Grand for the past 10 days have been enthusiastic in their praise.

The picture was reviewed when it first opened its run a week ago.

TWO MOTORCYCLISTS BADLY HURT IN CRASH

Girl, Youth Injured When Auto, Hit by Hit-Run Car, Rams Machine.

Two of three young persons were severely hurt Sunday night when they were knocked from a motorcycle at Glenn street and Murphy avenue, by an automobile that was sideswiped by another car and thrown against them.

Miss Marjorie Griffin, 16, of 249 Eugene street, suffered a broken left arm and ankle and a broken right arm, and Morrison Rich, 20, of 1584 Jonesboro road, received a broken left foot, when the two and Zack Avery, a third motorcyclist, were catapulted from the motorcycle. Avery was not injured.

Rich, who was driving the motorcycle, slowed for a red light alongside an automobile driven by J. C. Cowley, of 1687 Gordon street, when Cowley's car suddenly seemed to jump at the cyclists out of the dark, it was said.

The third machine had sped from behind, struck Cowley's automobile and had careened across the red light eastward along Glenn street. The auto disappeared before its license number could be noted.

Cowley, who had stopped for the red light, was not hurt and assisted in taking the injured youths to Grady hospital. Rich was treated and released. Miss Griffin was admitted for observation. A technical charge of reckless driving was preferred against Cowley.

Two other persons were treated at Grady Sunday afternoon and night for minor injuries. Mrs. N. E. Thomas, 516 Whitehall street, was bruised about the body when struck down by an automobile driven by Miss Eleanor Watson, of 690 Piedmont avenue. The accident occurred at Whitehall and Montgomery streets.

Four-year-old Susie Robinson, the daughter of R. J. Robinson, 41 Ormond street, was treated for bruises she suffered when she fell while playing on the grounds of the James L. Key school on Capitol avenue.

COMMITTEE RULES AGAINST REOPENING EDGEWOOD SCHOOL
A resolution of Alderman W. W. Waits to reopen the Edgewood school was reversed at a meeting of the building and grounds committee of the Atlanta board of education Saturday.

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, chairman, announced Sunday.

The resolution had asked that the school be reconsecrated and opened this year, the alderman contending that near-by schools were overcrowded and that the Edgewood school was needed.

The committee also considered the choice of architects for a new building in case the $3,000,000 fund for school building is granted by the government.

In several instances certain prominent architects were not selected because they already have other big jobs," Mrs. Nelson explained. "These men will not blame us for following the principal and the city council, capital and by President Roosevelt himself, of using the widest distribution of employment and giving it where most needed."

LABOR DAY PARADE PLANS DISCUSSED BY TRADE LEADERS
Atlanta's traditional Labor Day parade, which will be freighted with deeper meaning this September, will be held on the 24th, as hundreds and more hundreds of men and women return to gainful work, will form near the capital as in other years, and travel the Whitehall-Peachtree street route familiar to every Atlantan who has watched a parade.

More than 60 organizations affiliated with the Atlanta Federation of Trades met at the Labor Temple, 91 Trinity avenue, Sunday afternoon, and developed plans looking to the participation of marchers. It is expected that it will take an hour for the parade to pass a given point.

Forming on Washington street near the capital at 10 o'clock, the parade will move at 10:30 o'clock along Washington to Whitehall, along Whitehall and Peachtree streets to Baker, then down Baker to Spring, where the marchers will band.

The special committee of the federation which has charge of floats and other details will meet next Sunday at the Labor Temple at 3 o'clock to perfect their plans.

NORFOLK AND WESTERN CONTINUES SHORT WEEK
ROANOKE, Va., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Approximately 7,000 shop employees of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co., who have worked five days a week for the past two weeks, will continue on the five-day basis temporarily, contingent upon business conditions and necessary repair work, it was announced at the general office today.

Shop forces were placed on a four-day basis on June 19, previous to that time they worked three days a week. Two weeks ago they were moved up to five days a week.

Bible Game

$1,800 IN CASH PRIZES!

By THE BIBLE GAME EDITOR.

The conductor of this department is elated to learn that the Bible Game has appealed so strongly to the little ones. In many homes, youngsters—some of them just above infant age—are deriving a lot of enjoyment from matching the pictures with verses. More than that, they are gaining a valuable knowledge of the Book of Books—and gaining it in such a way that it will "stick" in their memories throughout their lives.

The Bible Game is a whetting children's desire to learn all about the most beautiful and dramatic scriptural stories; and it is instilling in them an ambition to know and understand the divine library in complete detail. Eventually this youthful interest will manifest itself in numerous beneficial ways.

Questions and Answers
No Repetition.
Q. Is one verse illustrated more than once by any of the pictures?
A. No.

No Tracings.
Q. It is my intention to submit four sets. Will you accept tracings of the pictures and answer blanks?
A. No. See rule No. 6.

Ornate Sets.
Q. Is it permissible to color the Bible Game pictures and paste them in a nice bound book before they are submitted?
A. Bible Game entrants may, if they wish, embellish their pictures and prepare their sets in book form, but we prefer that pictures and sets be kept simple.

Back Pictures.
Q. Please mail me pictures Nos. 23 and 24, as I was out of town, and

No. 57
The Bible verse represented by this picture is:

Book..... Chapter No..... Verse No.....
Name.....
Address.....

(Note: This picture is drawn to represent a verse chosen from The Bible Treasury, an abridgment of the "Authorized" or King James version of the Scriptures.)

INSTRUCTIONS:
The total prize money to be awarded Bible Game followers is $1,800. The first prize is $1,000. The second, $400; the third, $100; the fourth, $75, and the fifth, $25. There are ten prizes of $10 each and twenty prizes of $5 each.

The prizes will go to readers who submit the eighty most appropriate verse-answers for the series of eighty pictures. No subscriptions need be obtained to qualify for any of the prizes, and non-subscribers are invited to take part. It is not necessary to register. There will be no essays to compose, letters to write, or extra pictures or puzzles to solve.

The Bible Game pictures and verse-answers are NOT to be submitted now. Wait until ALL of the pictures have been published, then bring or mail them in at one time, as a set.

THOMAS ESPY DIES AT HOME IN DOTHAN
DOTHAN, Ala., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Thomas M. Espy, 71, widely-known attorney and veteran leader in political affairs of the state, died at his home here last night following several months' illness.

A member of the Alabama constitutional convention in 1901, Mr. Espy served as a member of the state house of representatives from 1903 to 1907. During his term in the legislature he introduced and obtained passage of the bill creating Houston county, of which Dothan is the seat.

He is survived by a widow, three sons and two daughters.

POINCARÉ SERNADED ON 73D BIRTHDAY
SAMPIGNY, France, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Raymond Poincaré, France's war president, was serenaded by the residents of his birthplace on his 73d birthday today at his summer estate here. His health has improved during the past year, and he passes much of his time motorizing on country roads.

Pastor and Mule Serve Churches for 30 Years
ELKIN, N. C., Aug. 20.—(AP)—For 30 years, Rev. J. W. Bryant, pastor of the Southern Baptist church, has served rural churches in a 50-mile radius and his mule, band while he receives felicitations from respectful neighbors in a quiet celebration of his 73d birthday today at his summer estate here. His health has improved during the past year, and he passes much of his time motorizing on country roads.

DR. J. A. WRIGHT DIES AT ATLANTA HOSPITAL

Covington Leader Was One of Last Three Members of Emory Class of '75.

Dr. J. A. Wright, well-known resident of Covington, died at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning at a private Atlanta hospital.

A graduate of Emory University, Dr. Wright was one of the last three survivors of the class of 1875, the other two being Bishop Warren A. Candler and George Stone, of Oxford.

Dr. Wright was for many years a druggist in Covington and was a leader in civic affairs and church work. He was lay-reader and a trustee of the Covington Methodist church, where funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock (eastern time) this afternoon.

Bishop Candler and the Rev. M. M. Maxwell will officiate at the rites and interment will be in the Covington cemetery.

Dr. Wright is survived by his wife, the former Miss Corrie Carr, who was a resident of Atlanta for many years.

School Survey Report Before Board Tonight
Consideration of a report of a special survey committee of the Atlanta board of education will be the major business of the board at 7 o'clock tonight at the city hall.

A feature of the report is that every recommendation of W. Evans Chambers, city survey expert, designed to save $612,000 a year, is sidetracked and minor changes recommended to save a sum estimated variously at from $50,000 to $200,000 annually.

The committee Saturday completed its recommendations after a study of the Chambers report and a review of suggestions made previously by the school survey group.

Findings to be reported tonight are the result of a study of both the previous reports. No other business is slated for consideration at the meeting.

GRAND JURY INDICTS 5 MISSISSIPPI BANKERS
MERIDIAN, Miss., Aug. 20.—(AP) Five bankers were indicted here Saturday afternoon by the Lauderdale county grand jury on charges of violating the state banking laws and were released under bond.

Those indicted were E. Cahn Sr., president of the closed E. Cahn Bank and Trust Company, Meridian; E. Cahn Jr., vice president, and Mark E. Dabbs Sr., cashier. Each made bond for $15,000.

Also indicted were J. H. Naylor, president of the Lauderdale (Miss.) State bank, near Meridian, and Willard Brown, vice president. Each posted a bond of $10,000.

Japs Demand Leniency For Slayers of Inukia
TOKYO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Indicating nation-wide sympathy, petition after petition has been pouring into the office of War Minister Sadao Araki asking leniency for 11 cadets who face a court-martial for the assassination last year of Premier Inukai.

The most gruesome arrival contained nine blood-stained little fingers cut from the hands of the petitioners packed in a box of native paulownia wood and accompanied by a strongly worded resolution requesting leniency.

Y. W. C. A. To Sponsor Leisure Time Activities in September

To girls enjoying more leisure time under the protective wings of the blue eagle, the Y. W. C. A. extends invitation to come to 37 Auburn avenue, where they may swim, read, or play. Beginning in September, the Y. W. C. A. will sponsor special leisure time activities in addition to the usual evening club features.

At present the "Y" pool is open from 11 to 1 and 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock for dips, but if enough girls desire earlier dips, the schedule is flexible and may be adjusted for their convenience. Morning classes held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays likewise suggest profitable and pleasant use of leisure hours. A number of girls have entered the life-saving class held Mondays and Fridays from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock. As the classes began last week, applicants may still join, provided they have a physical examination by one of the "Y" doctors. The class is composed of Misses Jean Cook, Caroline Souter, Esther Souter, Nedra Holbrook, Mary Kate Burruss, Jacqueline Poole, Mary Rhodes, Lorraine Rivers and Miss Nell Walton is the instructor.

While at Camp Highland many of the younger girls were interested in joining life-saving classes and the following are proud possessors of life-saving badges: Misses Dorothy See, Margaret Matthews, Barbara Henry, Catherine Crabbe, Sue Clapp, Catherine Wicker, Dorothy Henry, Helen McCarty, Mann Jones, Jean McShaw, Isabel Carter, Eugenia Luck, Jacqueline Little and Anne Johnson.

Jewish Women Will Meet Today At Standard Club

An important call meeting of the executive board of Atlanta section, National Council of Jewish Women, has been announced for this morning at 10:15 o'clock, at the Standard Club, by Mrs. F. E. Sterne, president. The entire membership of the section, as well as the executive board, is urged to attend this meeting which has been called in compliance with the request of the Federation of Women's Clubs, of which the council is a member.

At this meeting the best methods of securing co-operation with the NRA Consumers' Club, women's division, will be discussed. Mrs. Herman Heyman, chairman of NRA activities for the Council of Jewish Women, has secured as speaker Mrs. E. A. Peoples, of the Junior League, who will present the subject to the section.

Mrs. Heyman is eager to have as large an attendance as possible in order that the council may do its full share toward furthering this great program.

At the meeting, according to Mrs. Sterne's announcement, one welfare project will be discussed.

Friendly Counsel

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence is invited, but names held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: I finished high school this year and hoped I could go on to college, but being alone in the world I must now go to work since I am 20 years old. I have found a young lady who I think is as nearly my ideal as I will ever find. For a year we have corresponded and exchanged ideas about all the topics on our minds—but the one—love. I have never told her that I love her, though surely she knows it. We have only seen each other a few times. I had planned to go to see her before she returns to college, but that plan didn't work out and now I shall see her until she returns to her home next summer. I prefer to wait until I see her face to face before declaring my love, as I don't want any lingering doubts in my mind after I have told her that I love her. You see letters are not as revealing as personal conversation. Still, if she goes back to school and seeks male companionship as all normal girls do, I feel for the competition. I believe she is selfish. How can I find out for certain and how can I help her overcome this trait if she has it? Should I write her what is in my heart or should I wait to see her?

WONDERING.

ANSWER: There is just one thing worse than an over-cautious man—that is a foolhardy man. The latter is far more attractive to a woman, though he frequently causes her heartache. The man that believes he has found his ideal, even though she may have a flaw in her character, yet hangs back from telling her he loves her and postpones his proposal until he shall have all her traits catalogued and all her imperfections polished smooth, is an over-cautious man. And if he doesn't overcome his extreme conservatism, he will be old before he finds a model woman to marry, if ever.

This is not said in any spirit of unkindness, for goodness knows there are too many unthoughtful marriages these days. Young people rush into matrimony with no thought for anything but a mutual physical attraction that is at best fleeting. It is refreshing to hear of a man who is approaching the thought of marriage in a rational frame of mind. However, even a good thing may be done in the ground. And the man who loves a

Even during the height of vacation season, when many sports enthusiasts are away on summer trips, the "Y" chlorinated pool maintains a gratifying popularity, with an increase in the number of dips. Over 437 people enjoyed swimming in the indoor pool from August 1-15, with 319 taking dips this year, compared to 308 for the same period in 1932.

Attractive pink, blue and yellow folders are being distributed among the industrial girls of the city, announcing interesting club plans for the fall and winter and special music and dancing for the gala opening program Monday evening, September 18. As girls will be working shorter hours this winter, the Y. W. C. A. anticipates a larger crowd than ever and interest groups and activities will cater to varied tastes and temperaments. Every girl who works with her hands, whether in factory, print shop, 10-cent store, cafeteria, beauty parlor or household, is invited to join the "Y."

Horse Show Held At Camp Ko-wee-ta

Atlanta girls took part in the annual horse show at Ko-wee-ta Friday and Saturday. The show was a success, with many prizes won by the girls. The winners of the "advanced riding class" were Jean Howell, of Atlanta, first place; Cecile Coker, of Atlanta, second place; Anna Elizabeth Brannen, of Moultrie, first place; and Douglas Lyle, of Atlanta, second place. The winners of the "advanced riding class" were Vania Trimble, of Moultrie, first place; Bertie Smith, of Florence, Ala., second place; Douglas Lyle, of Atlanta, third place; and Virginia Marchman, of Montgomery, fourth place.

Many campers entered the annual swimming meet Thursday with enthusiasm and sportsmanship. Entrants were judged on form in strokes, diving, and endurance. Winners in the beginners' class were Mary Alice Whitman, of Atlanta, first place; Peggy Canby, Dayton, Ohio, second place; Cecile Coker, of Atlanta, third place; and Peggy Copeland, of Atlanta, fourth place. Winners in the advanced were Dorothy J. Wampler, of Miami, first place; Billie Fowler, of Macon, second place; Bertie Smith, of Florence, Ala., third place; and Anna Elizabeth Brannen, of Moultrie, fourth place.

During the season Miss Gertrude Vinton, of New Castle, Ind., head of water sports, and Miss Goul of Atlanta, a member of the swimming staff, gave Red Cross life saving examinations and the following girls successfully passed the outdoor examination: Dorothy J. Wampler, Billie Fowler, Douglas Lyle, Jean Howell, Bertie Smith, Jennette Rainey, Anna Elizabeth Brannen, Betty Crewshaw, Myra Jernigan, Dorothy Forster and Virginia Marchman.

girl for a whole year without ever telling her that he loves her is taking a big chance of losing her to some man less rational, perhaps, but more lover-like.

Furthermore, it is a very dangerous practice for a man to attempt to remould the character of the girl in whom he is interested. To begin with, he can't do it; and to end with, he renders himself odious to the girl in attempting to do it. She sees in his effort not only an autocratic tendency but also an implied arrogance on his part which says in effect: "There is no note in my eye, so I shall set about to pull the note from your eye. She replied in effect: "Fool, if you don't like me, I am, then some other man will."

SILVER FORD PASSES ITS HALF-WAY POINT

The Silver V-8 Ford economy car, which is going out from Atlanta to various Georgia towns daily on a 10,000-mile economy run, up to Sunday night had gone considerably past the half-way mark, or a few hundred miles above 5,000.

The car is making about 900 miles a day, and is averaging around 20 and 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline, with no more than a normal consumption of oil. It has been enthusiastically received at the contact points along the route where stops are made for refueling.

So far there has been no interruption of the program begun last Monday, when the car took off from the West-Pop station at Spring and Peters street. The only mishaps have been occasional punctures, and not many of those.

Miss Annabel Vaughn Weds Mr. Wheeler

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Walter James Vaughn, of Thomasville, announces the marriage of her daughter, Annabel, to Joseph Lee Wheeler, also of this city, on August 19, in Atlanta, Ga.

The above announcement will be read with cordial interest by the friends of the contracting parties who have lived in this city for many years. Mrs. Wheeler is a graduate of the Thomasville High school, later attending the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, where she was graduated with honors. Upon completion of her studies there she became a member of the faculty of the Thomasville schools and has engaged in teaching for the past several years. She is a young woman of many fine attainments and popular with the younger social set of this city.

The groom was for a number of years manager of the Western Union telegraph office in this city, only recently having been transferred to the city of New York. He is a position, but one carrying a promotion with it. He is held in high esteem both among a wide circle of friends in Thomasville and in the estimation of the high official of his company. He is a young man of exceptional business ability. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will make their home in Rome.

Miss Dorothy Pomeroy is superintendent of the junior department, assisted by Mrs. W. G. Ford, Miss Helen George, Mrs. Henry W. Pearce, Miss Priscilla Ann Moore is superintendent of the primary department, assisted by Miss Isabel Medley; Miss Ellen Hollingsworth is superintendent of the kindergarten, assisted by Misses Dorothy Reese and Betty Cotten. Miss Ruby Coleman is secretary and registrar.

5NT(4) Pass 7♠(5) Pass

1—A Forcing Takeout in a three-card suit. The hand contains 5 honors, tricks and, after the opening bid of a diamond, it is, of course, North's intention to play the hand certainly for game and probably for at least a Small Slam.

2—A denial that the opening bid was based on any substantial margin above the minimum.

3—The conventional use of the Four-Five Notrump Convention, showing unusual strength, flattery, and a bid suit—in this case the club King.

4—Naturally South gives the conventional response, which shows the possession of the remaining Aces. While somewhat worried about the lack of a fit, he must respond to his partner's conventional Slam forcing bid in the conventional manner.

5—It is obvious that the success of the contract depends upon either a favorable lead or a simple finesse in spades. The Grand Slam should be bid.

- BRIEF MOMENT -

By S. N. BEHRMAN

WHAT HAS HAPPENED. Rod Deane, actor of a wealthy, aristocratic family, married Abby Fane, beautiful young singer in the Club Biarritz, which is owned by Steve Walsh, against the wishes of the Deane family. Rod and Abby go to Europe on a gay honeymoon and then come back to New York, where Rod's friend, Harold Siggett, has furnished a home for them—with the Deane money, of course. For Siggett is a continuous sponge on Rod, though Rod doesn't mind. Abby tries of the frivolous running around that is prevalent with Rod's crowd. They arrive home after a hectic afternoon at a mailing address. She wishes to settle down and for Rod to work and make something of himself besides a playboy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

There was tragedy written in Abby's face. "Oh, but Rod, I thought tonight we—"

"He turned to Sig. 'Get Tim on the phone and order seats, will you?'

"Let's see, now. That'll be six." Sig started to walk towards the phone.

Abby rose from the table. "Five! Count me out."

"Why? What's the matter?" asked Sig.

"Count me out! Rod and I were going to spend an evening together— for once!"

"Oh, I'm sorry—sorry, Rod—we'll go," Sig seemed genuinely sorry. "I don't understand we weren't wanted."

"Oh, don't go on my account, I'm sure Rod would rather see the Scandals," Abby turned abruptly and left the room.

"Wait Sig—" Rod ran after Abby. He overtook her and his voice was a trifle angry. "Listen, darling, I know you're disappointed, but you shouldn't talk to Sig like that."

"Well, for one thing he's my friend."

"I meant what I said about Sig at dinner—"

"And I meant what I said—only it wasn't half enough," Abby shot back. "I think," said Rod, "it was a little too much."

Abby's voice broke a little. "Who is this Sig? What sort of influence has he got over you? The minute he comes in your forget all about me."

"Well, I don't see anything wrong in going to the theater."

"It isn't that. It's the way he's running your life—and trying to ruin mine. Well, I won't have it. I don't want his friendship," Abby's eyes flamed.

"Well I do—"

"Go on out with him, then! If he's what you want in your life, don't let me stop you—"

"I won't!"

Rod turned and strode from the room. Abby stood alone—a solitary figure caught in the entangling silver-covered cords of love—cords that cut into the flesh deeply at times—into the heart to break it—make it bleed. She waited, hoping against hope that Rod would come back to her—through the doorway to take her in his arms, convince her of his love, devotion. The crash of a bullet into her body could not have been more terrifying than the slam of the door that informed Abby that Rod had gone—left her. The stark silence that followed was grim—grim. Abby fell to the bed, her form racked with desperate sobs.

Rod came home that night—dead drunk in the supporting arms of Sig. Sad because of the shameful plight of her husband, Abby relented in her pity.

The next morning she went down to the Deane bank to ask Franklin Deane Sr. to give Rod a job. It ended in an argument and Abby left—no better off than she was before.

Deane Sr. apparently sensed something sincere in Abby's manner. "The girl seems to be really interested in Rod's welfare."

"Not at all," said Franklin Jr. "It's just her way of dominating him."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, from what Sig tells me, she does nothing but try to make Rod feel inferior. The thing is psychological. She's conscious of having married above her and that's her defense against it."

The elder Deane thought a moment. "I see. Then it's a sort of victory for her—Rod's coming to work."

"That's all."

Abby returned home. Rod, with the aid of the butler, had managed to come out of his drunken stupor. Abby immediately went to her room and started to pull her personal things from the dresser drawers.

"What are you doing?" asked Rod. "What does look like—I'm leaving you, Rod."

A frown creased Rod's forehead. "Don't be foolish. Don't do something you'll be sorry for later."

"There's no room for me in your life, Rod. You've proved that, acting as you did last night."

"That was in the heat of argument. I only did that because of what you said."

Abby went on packing. "Then you'll always go on doing it. Rod, because I'll always go on saying the same things. I can't change any more than you can, so I'm leaving you and your friend Sig to do what you want—"

"I want you, Abby—"

"I mean it this time, Abby! I mean it then—only a fellow's liable to do anything when he's sore. I was thoughtful, that's all."

"That makes it just too bad for anybody who tries to help you."

"Nobody ever tried before. Maybe that's why it's not easy to take."

Abby looked at him, her eyes filling with tears.

Rod went on. "If you leave me—I'll just be running around in circles."

"I've been running around in circles ever since I married you," Abby broke into tears.

"Abby—darling—don't. Don't cry!"

"Do you think it's easy for me to leave you?" Abby asked plaintively. "You aren't going to leave me honey—never mind what's happened before—I'll come through for you—if you'll just give me the chance—"

"Don't," pleaded Abby, "say it unless you mean it."

"I do mean it, dear."

Abby looked into his eyes. "Then go down to your father—and ask him for a job."

"Ask him—I'll tell him!"

Abby laughed through her tears as Rod took her comfortably into his arms.

Rod did see his father, and he did tell him—and Rod started at the bottom of the banking business firm.

To be concise, Rod started at a file clerk. Abby, of course, was delighted, for it began to look as though Rod's better characteristics were beginning to come to the surface.

But, exactly thirteen days after Rod started to work in the bank he quit. Let it be said for him that it was not entirely his fault. Franklin Jr., his brother, had started at the top and kiddingly chided Rod for his foolishness in really working. Sig, too, was a bad influence. So, thirteen days after entering his father's employ, Rod and Sig were at the race track—were here—were there—everywhere but at the office. The week that followed was one long spree.

Abby, naturally, knew nothing of Rod's desert. When he returned home late that night, he had a conference.

Then came Rod's birthday—23 years old! Abby, happy as the proverbial lark, gaily set about the task of decorating their home for the surprise party. Wrapping presents—putting the candles in the cake—all the little chores that spelled peace and contentment for Abby. She stopped for a moment as the door bell rang.

Abby answered it. Her eyes opened wide with delight. "Steve!" she hugged him ecstatically. "Well, I'm glad you got around here at last. Where've you been all this time?"

Steve grinned, his face taken for a ride at the tracks. Where've you been? Haven't seen you in a month—"

"Well," said Abby with mock seriousness, "I've been looking for you."

"Now, look here, Steve—if I don't want to work, that's my affair—and what I tell my wife is my affair, too. If it makes her happy to think I'm down at that office all day, then I'm going to make her happy."

"You're going to tell her the truth."

"Listen, I've had enough of your interference," Rod's fists clenched. "I'm not taking orders from any imitation gangster."

"You're not, eh? You cheap little double-crosser!" Steve's open hand whipped across Rod's face. Abby came in just too late to see the blow, but she sensed the strained silence.

"Rod! What's the matter?" There was a startled look in Abby's eyes. "Sit down, Abby. I wasn't going to tell you this—and I wouldn't tell you now if Steve weren't here. But I guess I might as well make a clean breast of it." Rod had come to a decision.

Rod told her the truth—the whole story from beginning to end. Abby was stunned. Her faith in the man she loved crumbled about her with a mighty crash. Her dream castle became a battered ruin. Something snapped in her heart.

"You're a quitter!" Her words bit out contemptuously. "You want to start at the top—along with men who've worked all their lives—and want them to bow down to you and flatter you—like those so-called friends of yours—making you think you're great because of who you are—not because of what you can do."

"You've made it pretty plain what you thought of my friends—and of me—" oueness, "It's a long story, Mr. Walsh."

After the laughing pleasantries, Steve sank into the soft cushions of the sofa. "All the comforts of home!" "You wouldn't think so—the way you stay away."

"Well," answered Steve, "you've been kinda staying away from my place, haven't you?"

"Well, you see," said Abby a little importantly, "we haven't been going out much—since Rod started to work—"

"Since what?" Steve's mouth hung open.

Abby laughed. "I guess it is a shock—Oh, everything's changed. Steve—no more drinking or running around. He goes to the office every day now—"

"Since when did this happen?" "Oh—weeks now—"

"Given up the races and the speaks, huh?"

"He hasn't time for those things any more. Hardly any time for me, even."

Then Steve realized how little she knew. "Oh, Abby—that's great—that's great, Abby—"

"You know, Sig was to blame more than Rod for the way he acted. It was a wise thing to drop him."

"He doesn't see him now, eh?" Abby smiled. "You don't know how it makes me feel—knowing I was the one who made him settle down."

"Sure I do," Steve stood up. "You're a hundred per cent kid—and I'm for you—remember that, will you?"

The door bell rang once again. "Gee, that's Rod now," Abby stood up also, and "I haven't got the presents wrapped. Steve, will you keep him busy for a few minutes?"

Rod came in and Abby hurried off to complete her party preparations. Steve and Rod were talking.

"How are the horses treating you?" asked Steve.

"Me? I haven't been to the races in months."

"No, I thought I saw you a few times at Belmont."

"No-o-o. Not me—I've had my nose to the grindstone."

Rod realized, then, that Steve knew. "Nice detective work."

Steve began to lose his temper. "You poor snip! How long do you think you can get away with this? She'll find out—she's got to find out."

"Keep your voice down, will you?" "What for? She's going to find out, because you're going to tell her."

"I am not!"

"No?" Steve made a wry face. "Then I will."

"Now, look here, Steve—if I don't want to work, that's my affair—and what I tell my wife is my affair, too. If it makes her happy to think I'm down at that office all day, then I'm going to make her happy."

"You're going to tell her the truth."

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

A General Weekly Review of Commerce and Industry Affecting the Greater Atlanta Trade Territory

Edited By JACK TUBBS

Agnes Scott College Is 'Internationally Known for Scholastic Excellence'

INSTITUTION HOLDS PROMINENT PLACE IN SCHOOL CIRCLES

High Ranking, Coupled With Splendid Plant and Equipment, Insures Educational Excellence.

Long years of hard-won achievement in varied educational phases, through which runs a golden thread of noble tradition, have won for Agnes Scott College, in Decatur, acknowledgment and recognition in every corner of the United States and in many foreign countries.

Agnes Scott, whose diploma carries its graduates into the charmed educational circles of the world, is a proud institution—and justly proud of its record—for among the nation's foremost women's colleges it is one of the most popular and most sought after.

Convincing proof of the high rank of Agnes Scott is seen in the fact that it is a fully recognized member of the Southern Association and of the Association of American Universities. Its graduates are eligible for membership in the American Association of University Women. In addition, it is one of a very few colleges for women having a local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honor society.

Further evidence of the nation-wide approval accorded Agnes Scott is seen in the fact that great philanthropic foundations on numerous occasions have made careful examination and given liberal financial aid—the General Education Board, first, the Carnegie Corporation four times, and others.

The college exerts itself to the utmost to help young women who need assistance in continuing with their educational work, and deserving students often are able to obtain some loan or scholarship aid through Agnes Scott.

The college is one of the most outstanding institutions of its kind in the south, with respect to plant and equipment, having a number of conveniently arranged and splendidly equipped buildings on its campus. The latest and most beautiful of these is Buttrick Hall, which houses the administrative offices and classrooms. The gymnasium, another recent addition, has most unusual facilities for

First Mutual B. & L. Shares Tax-Exempt, Says Josiah Rose

Security of investment, coupled with freedom from taxation for the average shareholder, makes membership in the First Mutual Building and Loan Association one of the most desirable means of safeguarding against financial uncertainties of the future, according to Josiah T. Rose, former Georgia collector of internal revenue.

Holders of building and loan shares, Mr. Rose points out, are exempted from federal income taxation on them up to $5,000. The same holds true, according to officers of First Mutual, with regard to state and county taxes. Above $5,000, the shareholder must include his shares in his tax returns.

Mr. Rose, though a director of long standing in First Mutual, speaks not as an officer but as a citizen intensely interested in the welfare and well being of his fellow man when he calls attention to the advantages of building and loan investment. He is an enthusiastic disciple of building and loan and preaches its doctrine at every opportunity.

Money Remains At Home.

Aside from the all-important tax exemption feature of building and loan investment, says Mr. Rose, the safety factor of such investment is of the utmost importance to the prospective home builder. Not only do holders of First Mutual shares receive 6 per cent return on their investment, but they are assured that their money, in the event of need, is in first mortgages on improved property situated within Fulton county. Thus, the money invested remains at home.

A committee of three members of the First Mutual directorate inspects every piece of real estate involved upon application for loans, and their signed recommendation is returned to the board of directors for final action. Thus, the shareholder in First Mutual is given still another assurance swimming, games, dramatics and numerous other recreational activities.

The college recently completed a campaign for $1,500,000, of which the General Education Board gave $500,000, and as these funds are collected other buildings will be erected, to make the plant one of the most complete in the south.

So complete is the Agnes Scott curriculum that numbered among its graduates are many who have met with eminent success in more than 50 chosen occupations.

Music, art and expression are integral parts of the curriculum, and educational standards are as high in them as in any other subject. The Presser Foundation and the General Education Board have pledged $100,000 for a new music building, and the Carnegie Corporation has furnished splendid equipment for art. Agnes Scott's expression students have received national recognition in the past.

Students of Agnes Scott, with the full cooperation of the faculty, have developed a remarkably fine group of activities which add to the happiness of the college community and enable every girl to find full opportunity for the expression of her special interests. Campus groups are formed to carry on sports, social life, class competitions and many other activities.

The Agnes Scott Glee Club is in great demand in the city and at the college. The Blackfriars draw large numbers to the plays they produce. Art groups, debating club, the Cotillion Club, dramatic organizations, the student government body, the Y. W. C. A. and many other fields of activity, experience and pleasure are open to the students.

JOSIAH T. ROSE.

ance that his money is invested only upon a true valuation of the property involved.

Not only is First Mutual a means through which the average man may help himself and thus acquire a home of his own, but through which the person of means may invest to his own advantage and to that of those less fortunate, since the first interest of the institution is to help the working man finance the building of his home.

The "Forgotten Man."

The "forgotten man," who has plodded along, learning the lessons of economy and thrift during times of depression, says Mr. Rose is the man who has put away his money systematically and been able to reap the advantage of low building costs. First Mutual officials, however, point out that prices of building materials have advanced 25 per cent during the past week, but that not in many years has the real estate market been so filled with real bargains in residential lots.

Willard Revises Guaranty Policy

Based on field surveys of tests of batteries in actual use, the Willard Storage Battery Company has just released a new service guarantee and adjustment policy, according to S. B. Mellen, of the Mellen Battery Company, located at Baker and Ivy streets.

The policy bases the period of adjustment on the electrical capacity of the battery sold.

These field surveys, Mr. Mellen states, prove that there is a very close relationship between the electrical capacity of the battery and its life and service.

"For the first time," he states, "we now have an accurate measuring stick

BUSINESS GAINS AS EMPLOYMENT, WAGES ADVANCE

By HIRAM HERTELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Under the expanding wings of the blue eagle, business scored satisfactory progress last week, as employment and wages showed a continued upward trend.

In a number of industries, however, the delay in perfecting codes of fair competition has retarded the rate of activity. Widespread confidence exists that such deficiencies will be adjusted satisfactorily even if a bit of discreet pressure has to be applied here and there.

The fact that this has already been necessary in some of the "heavy industries," such as coal, oil and steel, has not lessened the desire of American business to do their part in the re-employment drive. Meanwhile, the NRA machinery is functioning more smoothly.

Outside of fluctuations in security and commodity markets there has been an absence of the deep declines which business generally experienced in midsummer. Production outdistanced consumption some 40 per cent in the past two months, but inventories were so abnormally low that this situation caused on particular alarm.

Experienced observers point out, therefore, that the tapering off of production peaks, now in evidence, is a logical development. At the same time, the majority of industrial indices are still above the position occupied in 1932 and 1931, and some are nearly parallel with the 1930 trend.

Steel Production Drops.

Steel production last week, according to the magazine "Steel," fell 3 points to 51 per cent of capacity. Seasonal influences, adding to the inability of purchasers to determine what effect the codes will have on future costs and prices, held back new orders. But confidence in an early fall revival is still strong, now that the new steel code is virtually ready for practical application.

Electric power consumption gained 15 per cent as compared with a year ago, only a shade less than the 15.6 per cent rise reported in the previous week. In the important geographical regions, output gains over the previous year were substantially maintained around recent levels.

Automobile production remained virtually unchanged. This is considered significant, for August production during the last three years has shown a drop, due largely to preparation of manufacturers for new model output. Because of the vigor of retail demand this month, production schedules are being continued practically unabated. Output for August is now authoritatively estimated at 200,000 units, as against 94,392 for the like month a year ago.

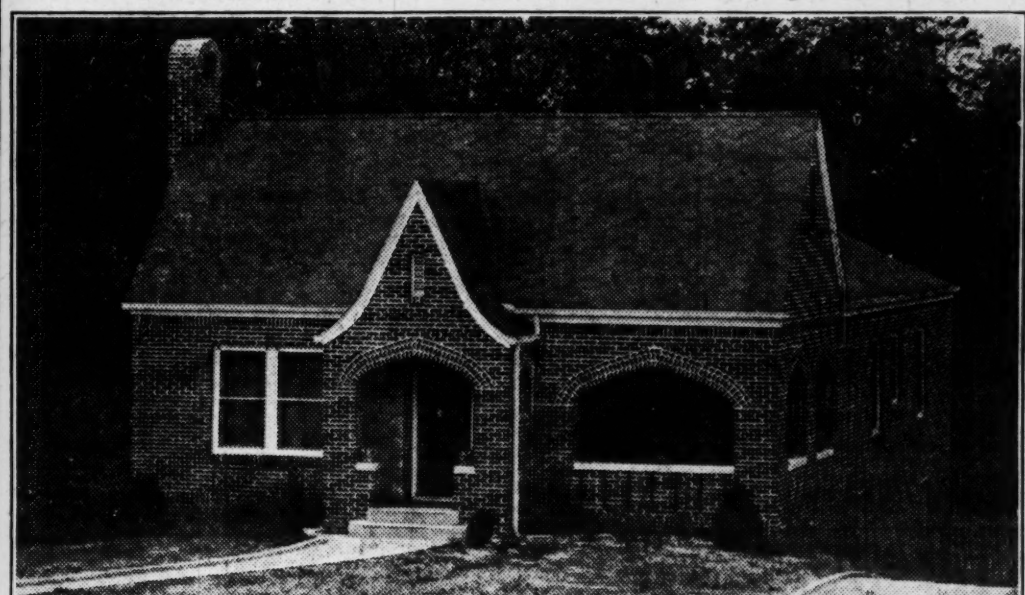

Car Loadings Gain.

Loadings of revenue freight for the week of August 12, totaling 622,759 cars, were 9,447 cars over the previous week, a contra-seasonal showing. As compared with the like week of a year ago the advance amounted to 21.6 per cent.

Consumers buying showed improvement under the recovery campaign. It is not solely the fear of the general advance of the price level of all merchandise—which will become effective on September 1—which has given such a strong spur to retail buying, maintains Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., but "rather the millions in new-found wealth which have been poured into the hands of consumers, who have converted these into long-deferred essential requirements."

Secretary of Labor Perkins estimated that some 400,000 factory employees returned to work in July and that pay rolls were $29,000,000 above the weekly wages of March. If this rate of wage increase is maintained, said Miss Perkins, $30,000,000 will be added to industrial wages this year. While food prices rose 8 1/2 per cent in July, pay rolls advanced 7.9 per cent in the same period.

Genasco Slam-Test Shingles Introduced In Atlanta Area by West Lumber Company

Above is shown one of countless homes roofed with genuine Genasco slam-test asphalt shingles, which have been introduced to home owners and builders here by the West Lumber Company.

The West Lumber Company, exclusive local distributors for the roofing and shingles manufactured by the Barber Asphalt Company, announces the introduction here of the new Genasco Slam-Test shingles.

"All asphalt shingles look alike," says Herbert J. West, president of the West Lumber Company, "since all have granular surfacing which gives them color, but there is a decided difference in the quality of the shingles, and quality is determined by the asphalt."

"If asphalt shingles are to give long service on the roof," he asserts, "they must be made with a coating that the new steel code is virtually ready for practical application.

that resists the action of ultra-violet rays of the sun and which withstands changes of temperature. Otherwise, hardening, embrittlement or cracking will occur. When the coating fails, trouble begins. Mineral granules become loose, the elements attack the saturated felt and the roofing disintegrates in a comparatively short time."

The improved coating of Trinidad Native Lake asphalt cement used in Genasco shingles is different. The research and technical staffs of the Barber Asphalt Company exposed roofing films—their own and those used in the manufacture of other shingles—to a devastating cycle of frigid cold, soaking rain and scorching sunlight in the "Weatherometer," a mechanical device which makes possible accelerated weathering tests on roofing films or, in other words, hastens the destruction of such roofing films by an exaggeration of natural weather conditions.

Here is what happened: As the experiments continued, the less weather-resistant coating films failed, one by one, but the coating now used on Genasco "stood the gaff" and lasted two or three times as long as others.

But, so much for the "Weatherometer" tests. The prospective purchaser of roofing is invited to take a Genasco Slam-Test shingle, get a good grip on it with both hands and SLAM it on the floor with all his might. He may SLAM it again and again until he is tired. Upon examining it, he may find that the saturated felt has been torn by the vibrant SLAMMING, but will note that little or none of the mineral granules or coating have been dislodged.

For more convincing proof of the superiority of the Genasco Slam-Test shingle, he is invited to compare this result with that obtained when any ordinary asphalt shingle is given this rough treatment.

"But shingles are not slammed like that on a roof," someone may argue. "That is true," Mr. West replies, "but you will agree that the loosening of the mineral granules is the first sign of roof trouble. The coating used in the manufacture of Genasco Slam-Test shingles is extremely adhesive and holds the protective armor of mineral granules in place regardless of the temperature changes—careless weather changes. That in itself means longer life for shingles. Genasco Slam-Test shingles are coated with Trinidad Lake Asphalt Cement, made from Trinidad Lake asphalt."

Genasco Slam-Test shingles, Mr. West states, are made with all-grain felt and coated with Trinidad Lake asphalt cement, made from Trinidad Lake asphalt. That is why they withstand the rain and snow and the destructive action of ultra-violet rays of the sun, which cause the deterioration of inferior shingles.

The West Lumber Company maintains a complete stock of shingles in all sizes and colors, together with roll roofing and a complete line of building materials. Contractors whom they recommend will be glad to give estimates on roofing for new construction or re-roofing.

For re-roofing purposes, another unbeatable product is the Latite shingle, which is manufactured by the Barber Asphalt Company and carries this "Slam-Test" coating. This shingle may be applied over the old roof without any trouble, and is securely held by a metal lock, an exclusive feature of this shingle. Convenient payments out of income may be arranged.

Any of the three West Lumber Company yards are ready to have recommended contractors submit figures on re-roofing, repairing or construction: 316 Peters street, S. W. (phone MAIN 3000); 1491 Piedmont avenue, N. E. (phone HEMLOCK 2476), or Scottdale yard, Scottdale (phone DEARBORN 1822).

Lumber Firm's Pay Roll Trebled Since March

WESTWOOD, Cal., Aug. 20.—(AP)—The Red River Lumber Company's pay roll in July was three times that of March, an increase of $151,000, T. R. Walker, resident manager, announced today. He said 2,000 men were employed.

Lumber shipments have increased to 19 cars daily, which Walker said was another treble gain. He said the company had advised employees any increase in pay provided in code for the industry will be retroactive to August 1.

COTTON ADVANCES 10 TO 20 POINTS IN WEEK'S TRADE

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Cotton was pulled out of the slough of declining values last week by the sharp recovery in grain prices during the last half of the period.

Up to midweek the market had continued its precipitate drop to levels about $18 a bale below the peak prices of July. The badly confused situation on the Chicago Board of Trade was held primarily responsible for much of the pressure on contracts, but it was also noted that traders who previously leaned toward the bull side, were giving more consideration to claims of large inventories of finished goods and reportedly less favorable prospects for their rapid movement into consumption.

On Thursday the market experienced a sudden rejuvenation, prices bounding ahead about $4 a bale. This movement had the earmarks of a celebration on the ability of the wheat market to keep its head above water after removal of the price peg on Wednesday. At the end of the week cotton futures were selling 50 cents to a dollar a bale above the levels of August 12.

Reports of a much reduced demand for cotton goods, generally favorable crop advices and the lingering influence of the previous week's government estimate, which was unexpectedly bearish, doubtless were factors in the heavy selling which the market was called upon to absorb in the first few days of the week.

Another wave of inflation talk, following suggestions in Washington that the administration intended to adhere strictly to its program for higher commodity levels, helped to broaden the buying movement on which prices rebounded from the low territory of the downswing.

Textile brokers reported that some sales of 38 1/2-inch 64-60 print cloths were reported at 6 1/2 cents a yard, and 39-inch 80-squares at 8 3/4 cents. These prices were raised slightly near the close of the week.

Value of College Training

A recent investigation, which included a study of "Who's Who in America," disclosed these interesting figures:

With practically no schooling, only 31 boys out of 5,000,000 attained distinction.

Out of 33,000,000 boys with an elementary school education, but 808 rose to prominence.

From a total of 2,000,000 boys with a high school education only 1,245 attained distinction.

But out of 1,000,000 college-trained men, 5,768 came to public notice as substantial successes.

Your boy, with a college education, will have 230 times the chance at success that he will have with but an elementary training.

TARZAN THE APE MAN No. 127

Night was falling and in the semi-darkness, as Tarzan brought Jean, Holt and Parker out of the gorilla's pit, the elephants crashed through the big but in which the white people were. Soon most of the wooden walls were demolished, falling upon the trapped dwarfs.

Many of the pin-heads had squeezed through the elephants and were now running frantically before the pursuing elephants. Others, unable to escape, screamed, fear-maddened, as they were trampled beneath the great feet of the tusked come to rescue Tarzan.

Tarzan and his companions waited, safe in a corner, while the carnage went on. At last the cries of the vanishing pygmies faded into the distance. Then the ape-man summoned the leader of the herd and helped the sorely wounded Parker to his broad back.

Next, he put Jean and Holt upon another and himself climbed up beside Parker. Then he gave his cry and the rest of the herd, their onslaught successfully down started toward the jungle. Not until then did Tarzan notice that his elephant was badly wounded.
